OUR 70TH YEAR, NO. 19 May 10, 1984

Bank of Carmel sale may be completed this week

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE BOARD of Directors of the National Bank of Carmel fell one hour short in a desperate bid to find a buyer and now faces personal losses of nearly $37 million, the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook has learned.

The federal office of Comptroller of the Currency in Washington D.C. declared the bank "insolvent" and ordered it closed at 5 p.m. May 8. All operations of the bank were turned over to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The National Bank of Carmel has been under investigation by federal and state banking officials because of alleged unsecured loans that exceeded 15 percent of its assets.

The Securities and Exchange Commission on May 4 suspended trading of National Bank of Carmel stock because of "substantial potential loan losses."

Federal bank officials are investigating a series of loans to Newport Beach businessman Leonard Levy, who owns 20 percent of the stock in Monterey County Bank.

The now-resigned Bank of Carmel Chief Administrative Officer Robert Boynton allegedly authorized the loans without the prior approval of the board of directors, said a bank director who asked to remain unidentified..

Additionally, the director said Richard Fritz, senior vice president, has been suspended from his position pending further investigation.

The loans totaled a little less than $9 million, the official said.

Despite all their problems, directors were able to find a buyer for the bank. However, that unidentified buyer agreed an hour too late, a source revealed yesterday morning (May 9).

"They closed the bank at 5 p.m. and we had a buyer at 6 p.m.," said a bank official, who wished to remain anonymous.

Federal bank examiners refused to allow the bank to keep its doors open for another day until the contract could be signed and approved by the appropriate regulatory agencies, according to the bank director.

"It's just big brother chewing us up. They forced everybody right out the door at 5 p.m.," the official said. "We just got raped by a couple of individuals and now the whole bank is closed."

Bank Vice Chairman of the Board Alan Williams later told this newspaper there was little he could say about the series of events.

HOWEVER, Williams did say that "We're pursuing buyers who are in town today (Wednesday).

"I want the public to know that we've been working around the clock to find a buyer that has the interests of Carmel and will keep the philosophy of our bank."

Williams added that he hopes any sale will include a provision that allows bank employees to keep their jobs.

"We have just fantastic employees. They're as much a part of the bank as we are."

Williams predicted that an agreement could be worked out as early as today or tomorrow. (May 10-11).

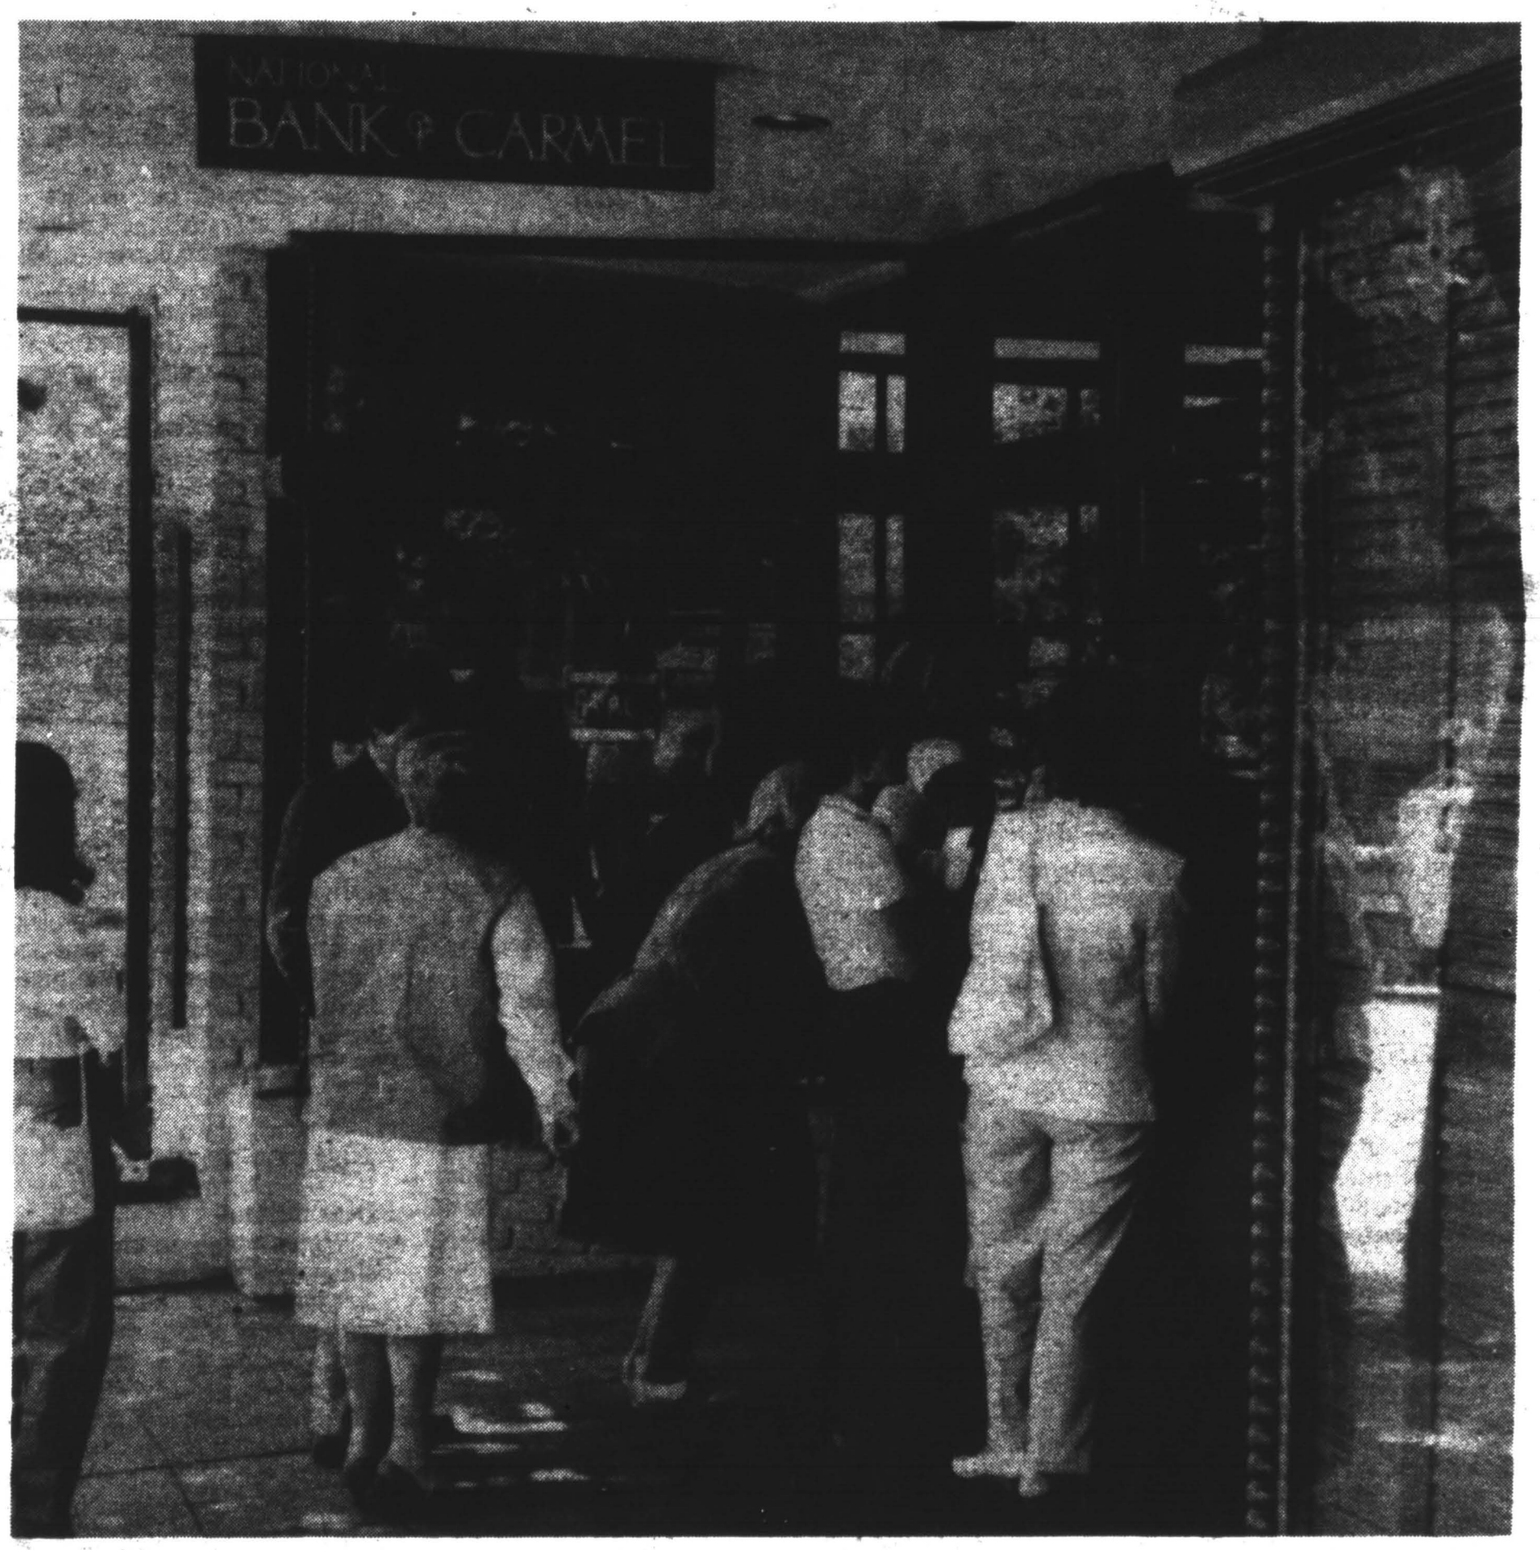

Bank officials also confirmed that the board of directors, which owns about 40 percent of the bank stock, will lose nearly $37 million. During the last stock split, directors invested $1 million of their money in the corporation.

Asked what would happen to the stock, a source said: "It's down the tubes."

This was confirmed by an official with the comptroller's office, who simply said: "They lose it."

The complex series of financial dealings that led to the closure of the Bank of Carmel are shrouded in secrecy and raise more questions than state and federal investigators are willing to answer.

Some of the following key questions, and possible answers, are drawn from officials with the bank and other sources that asked not to be identified:

WHEN THE Bank of Carmel opened its doors at 10 a.m. May 8, tellers were greeted by a line that extended out the door. Most of the people in line said they planned to withdraw cash from their accounts because of the announcement that the Securities and Exchange Commission had halted all trading of the bank's stock. • Who is Leonard Levy and what is his involvement with the Bank of Carmel and Monterey County Bank?.

Levy's connection with the two banks and how he was able to receive a series of speculated $5 to $9 million loans from Bank of Carmel is under scrutiny by federal banking officials.

One question that has been raised is whether Levy borrowed the funds to buy stock in the then-ailing Monterey County Bank. And what were his motives? Did Levy have a plan to drive down stock prices in the National Bank of Carmel so the Monterey County Bank could take over its competitor? No one knows, yet.

State and federal investigators refused to discuss Levy's dealings with the two banks and would not say whether he had even been contacted.

Monterey County Bank officials have confirmed that Levy owns 20 percent of its stock valued at approximately $700,000. They also confirm that at one time Monterey County Bank considered buying the National Bank of Carmel.

The Board of Directors of Monterey County Bank yesterday (May 9) unanimously demanded that Levy submit his resignation.

But the board of directors stated that the resignation demand is not related to the Bank of Carmel investigation.

The board said it learned two weeks ago that Levy did not obtain the necessary regulatory approvals from the state banking department before he bought the stock.

After Levy's connection with the Monterey County Bank was unveiled publicly May 8, Peter Coniglio, chairman of the Monterey County Board of Directors, issued a press release that claims the bank is "sound" and anticipates a profit in 1984.

CONIGLIO CLAIMS that Levy purchased his stock from two former shareholders without the knowledge of the current board of directors.

"After acquiring the stock, Mr. Levy attended a board meeting at which he threatened a proxy fight if he was not immediately seated as a director," Coniglio's statement continued.

"The board thought it was in the best interests of the bank

School bus melee

Dear Editor:

Recently, a Carmel school bus driver moved away. On her last day, which was Thursday, April 26, she picked up the kids in the afternoon. She told them that she was moving away. She also told them that they could have some fun on the bus that day.

The whole bus went wild. People were standing up, walking down the aisle, throwing paper all over the place, opening windows all the way and throwing paper out of them and making obscene gestures at passing cars.

Also, people were actually dropping their pants and backing up against the windows to advertise themselves to the people in the cars behind. Things started to get out of hand and things were getting broken. The lights that are over each seat were smashed and two seats were taken apart.

The bus driver got very upset. She started to cry and so all the kids settled down. The people who were in the cars behind the bus were very angry. The called the principal of the school and complained. The next day at school there was a temporary bus driver.

When the bus arrived the principal got on the bus. He looked at the damages and took the passengers into an empty classroom. There they had to write a letter of apology to the old bus driver and the principal talked to them all about how wrong they were. People complained that the bus driver told them they could do anything they wanted to. But the principal said that there was no excuse for what they did.

He also said they were living in a fantasy land and that they couldn't handle themselves anywhere else. When the rules are set, you know that when you break them you will be punished, he told the students. Many of the students were punished and everyone on the bus that day has to do cleanup duty for the rest of the school year. I think that the principal of the school did the very best he could for the great misbehavior on the bus that day.

He also told the students about all the terrible things that happen in mob scenes and to always try to avoid them.

'Vitriolic mouthings'

Dear Editor:

The joy of my semi-annual visit to the Monterey Peninsula was poisoned by reading the hysterical, vitriolic mouthings of Rosalind Sharpe Wall in your April 5 letters column.

Under the guise of historical accuracy, she gives vent to surmises, false conclusions, rash statements and downright lies.

"Father Serra was hated by the Indians..." Who says? "The story is told..." Great! So if I should encounter hearsay about Wall, does that become a historical fact to be a part of her biography? Of course not.

"Abortion was prevalent, as they did not want their children imprisoned..." Come on now, Rosalind, might there not have been even some other infinitesimal reasons? "Women who miscarried normally were punished by flogging plus being forced to carry the wooden effigy of a dead baby." Citation, please! All women? A woman? Old wives' tales or deliberate untruths?

Serra "was an exceedingly cruel man altogether lacking in the milk of human kindness." Altogether? Not even the tiniest bit? Go back to studying the records assiduously as per claim, lady.

So Serra's gentleness is a myth, according to Bancroft and Carey McWilliams and "countless sources?" Nonsense. Hints and innuendos aren't facts, lady.

Let's grant that people in circumstances such as then existed were tough, demanding, worried, and no doubt insecure and nervous. So were the pilgrims, the early settlers of the western push, the Indian hunters. The world then was not Carmel Valley, 1984.

But, be that as it may, it is historically improper and vicious to take up a cause of slander and half-truths, or outright falsifications, to pose them as facts, and seek to feed them to us of today for no other purpose than self-gratification or perversity.

The very fact of proclaiming "Serra was a flagellant" as if that was some rare or vile thing, and then drawing from that bold statement the stupid conclusion that thereby "a man so cruel to himself finds no difficulty or hesitancy in being cruel to others" proves to me that Rosalind Sharpe Wall is neither an historian nor a logician, but is rather a sick person unworthy of your fine publication's attention.

Lest we forget, she and all of us must know the Catholic Church is now, and has been, investigating Serra's cause with a view to proclaiming him a saint of the church. Such a recognition is not given lightly. Every foible or fault is weighed along with the good things.

Those in Rome would not waste their time, nor would the many throughout the world working to bring about this great recognition, were even a few of the vile Wall conclusions and allegations correct.

Hearing on CV Plan

Dear Editor:

A reasonably good version of the Carmel Valley Master Plan is finally to be presented to the supervisors in Salinas in a public hearing at 2:05 p.m. May 15.

The system of allocating new subdivisions in the Valley remains controversial and experimental, and planners recognize that it will take a year or so to shake down and operate satisfactorily. Unfortunately, new proposals have just been inserted by the planning commission, and if these are adopted a large fraction of the 20-year quota of subdivisions could be committed in those first two years. That could be disastrous.

Certain large-scale residential projects in the Valley, approved in the early 70s, have not been successful, and they remain largely unsold or untenanted despite the freeze on new subdivisions. This in itself recommends caution before approving more big projects for the Valley. Once the natural landscape has been destroyed, it can't be put back if the "development" doesn't succeed.

"In the land of lobelias and tennis flannels
The rabbit shall burrow and the thorn revisit
—Their only monument the asphalt road
And a thousand lost golf balls."

Just in case your supervisor doesn't read T.S. Eliot, call or write him to let him know you oppose these changes in the allocation system — and then go to the hearings in Salinas on May 15.

Highlands Inn outrage

Dear Editor:

It has been several years since I have had an opportunity to visit the Carmel area. Yesterday, tradition called for me to meet a friend for lunch at the Highlands Inn. Let me share with you what I saw.

The gardens, bungalows and chapel have been ripped out and have been replaced with large apartment units plus parking garages, making each building a minimum of two stories.

These are packed into every inch of available space. A tract of land directly behind the lodge has been surveyed; the native pines and oaks have been painted with red crosses to indicate which trees will be logged.

It is clear that there will be precious little room for trees when the buildings are completed. The development has all of the character and charm of downtown Las Vegas. The trip to Highlands Inn was at least as much fun as a trip to the dog pound.

Any yo-yo can figure out that a steep hillside is not designed for high density building. In addition to the obvious problems of water and sewage, what about the ground water, which will be unable to penetrate the asphalt, etc.? And, of course, the tremendous weight of the buildings?

Although I am not part of your community I am outraged at the result of some person's greed and I wonder why you are not also. May I suggest that you look at the property and decide whether you want your individual or corporate dollars to subsidize this type of behavior.

Citizens in this area have a unique opportunity to make their wishes known due to the concentration of wealth and power. Highlands Inn is insignificant but I believe that we should economically reward businesses that are responsible in order to discourage proliferation of what Highlands Inn now represents.

Your community is lovely. My sincere wish is that you may keep it that way.

Ed Lee is honest

Dear Editor:

That mobile billboard that periodically rears its gaudy head atop Carmel Hill and elsewhere has once more begun obstructing our otherwise uncluttered views.

This portable distraction is probably no more likely to cause an accident than any other billboard, but in case it does, who is liable? CalTrans, the CHP, the candidate, the driver, or the person to whom the vehicle is registered?

Consider for a moment the adage: If everyone did it... Imagine — starting with the president and working our way to the school board.

Consider that this is only April — a long, long time from November's grand finale.

Consider, too, that someone somewhere is up for election every year. Must we endure some gauche display of drive-in politics eight months out of 12?

Whether you call it a kind of freewheeling free speech or a public nuisance, you must admit it's tacky. It mocks every hard-won sign ordinance in the county — especially in Carmel/Carmel Valley. You needn't be for or against someone to recognize bad taste.

I hope the first action of the new board will be to halt "go-cart politics."

This subject leads me to endorse Ed Lee for supervisor. He is qualified, hardworking, dedicated and sensitive to the needs of this county. Lee's best quality was pointed out by his opponent. Howard Brunn said of Lee: "I know he's honest." What higher recommendation could one ask of the supervisor replacing Bill Peters? Ed Lee — honesty!

Future water use

Dear Editor:

Water usage in the city of Carmel has almost reached its allocation of 1,031 acre feet per year, and the city council is considering various water conservation regulations that will save a few gallons here and there.

Meanwhile the average flow of the Carmel River into the ocean is more than 50,000 acre feet per year. Compare this to the additional 6,000 acre feet annual requirement for the entire Monterey Peninsula up to the year 2020. However, the river often isn't flowing when we need it most.

Our elected officials can't seem to figure out how to solve this problem (except Ed Lee). While you are fussing at your shower head restrictor or adjusting the brick in your toilet tank, perhaps you could come up with a bright idea; then pass it along.

Cheers for C.H.S.

Dear Editor:

Carmel High School — not a miracle.

Carmel High is not a miraculous place, but it is functioning well because of a tremendous amount of hard work.

Five years ago, there were more than 60 teachers, and now there are 32.8. That's a reduction of about 50 percent.

Teachers now have a greater number of "preps," often in subjects in which they are not specialists, so that some variety of subjects can still be available. Some classes are offered in alternate years, some two years out of three, and some teachers (i.e. in physical education) teach many varieties of generic courses that give them a longer in-class day.

With a 50 percent reduction in teachers, the extra duty that each must do has greatly increased. We still have the same (and in some cases, more) "associate curricular" activities to sponsor, direct, coach, chaperone, etc.

In those same years of increasing time at work and increasing number of students in the classroom (student-teacher ratio), the teachers' buying power has been reduced by about 30 percent.

Teachers, trying to live like other members of our community, send children to college, eat, shop, support United Way, volunteer for a wide variety of services, get some exercise, and arrange for some way to supplement income, run out of time, energy and mental patience.

Along with reduction of teachers, there has been a concomitant reduction in support personnel, which should have been increased to help teachers who have more tasks — I speak of administrators and secretaries.

With weak and inadequate funding laws that are torn to pieces by capricious politicians year after year, we have hardly ever had hope of a stable or sufficient amount of money to plan the running of the public schools.

Considering the above, and the fact that stable people doing stable jobs are seldom newsworthy, there are people who traduce Carmel High, its students, teachers and staff. Those folks are uninformed. Some, because of their position, should know better. Sometimes their comments can be construed to indicate that they just don't like kids.

Carmel High has a very high percentage of wonderful students, and I tenor my displeasure with those who accuse falsely or dwell on the newsy exception. I venture to say that the schools have the greatest collection of innocents of any segment of the community.

A cancer 'epidemic'

Dear Editor:

Just how widespread must something be before we call it an epidemic? The number of people stricken with cancer is more than alarming.

What is happening in our environment that is causing so many people to be attacked by this insidious and dread disease?

I am sickened and appalled at the money being poured into this insane nuclear arms race. Take that money to clean up our environment and use our technology to cure, not kill.

Offended by billboard

Dear Editor:

It is with revulsion that we are subjected to the degrading sight of a large truck with a billboard-size sign advertising the candidacy of a woman running for supervisor.

This truck is seen parked on our beautiful scenic Highway 1 which has long ago prohibited any billboards.

If this candidate displays such poor taste and insensitivity in her campaign, imagine what her stand would be on future issues to preserve the beauty of our county.

She has lost our family's vote.

Differences begin to emerge between supervisor candidates

By ROBERT MISKIMON

AFTER SEVERAL months of posturing, the true identities of the candidates for Monterey County Fifth Supervisorial District are starting to take shape through the political rhetoric.

One example was afforded by a recent candidates' forum sponsored by the Sierra Club on the Carmel High School campus last week. (See coverage in this issue.)

Candidate Ed Lee of Carmel, who until now has tried to appear on both sides of every issue, took a verbal swipe at "coalition politics" as an impediment to growth, and even borrowed a phrase from one of history's classic boneheads — former Vice President Spiro Agnew — to make his point.

Coalition politics, according to Lee, results when one or more civic groups, such as the Forest Committee of Pebble Beach, the Friends of Grove, and the Emergency Coalition Against Airport Expansion join forces to "oppose everything." These groups, Lee said, are made up of "nattering nabobs of negativism" who wish to halt growth by blocking construction of dams and freeways.

One can only assume that Lee left the Sierra Club out of his diatribe because it would have been bad politics to include the host organization before which he spoke. To be fully accurate, he also should have included the city of Carmel, which has initiated lawsuits against Monterey County and private developers in Carmel Valley over development schemes.

While this kind of gung-ho, full-speed-ahead, chamber of commerce rhetoric is certainly nothing new in politics, it is new coming from the mouth of an individual who, until now, has been characteristically low-keyed and conciliatory in his public pronouncements.

Lee's outburst prompted a challenge from candidate Karin Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley, who denounced Lee's rhetoric as "hate mongering" and "scare tactics."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman may be right about that, but at least it's helpful that some striking differences between the candidates are starting to emerge. Lee, clearly, is one who looks with disfavor on citizens who exercise their constitutional rights to organize themselves and to address political issues that affect their lives, based on his remarks at this forum.

And that may be more significant, in the long run, than whether he favors unrestrained development or careful environmental safeguards in the planning process. The level of rhetoric, too, at this stage of the campaign, may give a clue to what kind of people are running for supervisor.

BOTH HOWARD BRUNN, a former Carmel City Council member, and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman, a Carmel Valley Property Owners Association director, seem to be in a league with respect to their attitudes about growth and development.

Neither is an extremist and both seem to favor rational, controlled growth. Neither seems to have a problem with "coalition politics" or with the workings of the democratic process.

Neill Gardner, a weekly newspaper columnist from Monterey, chose not to participate in the Sierra Club candidates' forum. Which may say something about his regard for both the Sierra Club and the residents of the Carmel area.

And Dortha Roesler of Toro Park, president of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association, said she, too, is troubled by coalitions. So far, neither Gardner nor Roesler has come across in their campaigns as particularly germane to the concerns of Carmel/Carmel Valley residents.

So the choice for most Fifth District voters, it seems, will be between Ed Lee, Howard Brunn, and Karin Strasser Kauffman. And one of those three already has started jousting at windmills.

Point Lobos development plans filed with county

By JOE LIVERNOIS

PLANS TO BUILD two new resort lodges across Highway 1 from Point Lobos have been submitted to the Monterey County Planning Department for environmental review.

The first draft of the environmental impact report for the project, which would include two 120-unit inns on the spacious Point Lobos Ranch, is expected to be completed by the end of this month, according to Monterey County environmental planner Lynne Mounday.

Point Lobos Ranch plans submitted to the planning department also indicate ranch owners, including members of the pioneer Hudson and Riley families, hope to build a conference center and restaurant atop a mountain to which access will be provided by an 1,880-foot rail tram that would hold up to 22 persons.

"One of the things that is the most unique item about this project (is the) funicular tram," said John Ashbaugh, the planning contractor hired by Monterey County to prepare the EIR for the project.

Mary Gunter, area manager of the state parks department, told the Pine Cone/ Outlook the prime concern of the state is the impact of the project on the 'resources' of Point Lobos.

"It'll be a big attraction, but it will be a controversial part of the project, I'm sure."

A 24-unit motel, a 12-unit hostel and employee housing for 36 persons are also planned on the 1,700 acre ranch, as well as 42 residential units.

Preparation of the environmental impact report was authorized by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on April 24 and the developer, represented by Monterey architect Paul Davis, paid the county almost $20,000 to prepare the EIR.

The scope of work for the EIR will include studies of probable impacts the project would have on surface drainage, vegetation, noise and wildlife.

The EIR will also investigate the effects of the project on the scenic value of the area and traffic on Highway 1.

The project proposal comes about 12 years after the Hudson family first tried to convince county planners to allow development on the property and services agency officials to provide services. At the time, the Hudsons clashed with the different governmental officials.

A similar project was unveiled more than two years ago, but the plans were placed in limbo because the Carmel Area Local Coastal Plan had not yet been certified.

The Carmel Area plan was certified by the California Coastal Commission last year and the preparation of the EIR will be the first step in the long bureaucratic maze of government approvals required for the project.

COASTAL COMMISSION approval of the project will also be required, according to Mounday, because while the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program has been adopted, the plan to implement the coastal policies in all the Monterey County coastal plans has not been approved.

Mounday said the county hopes to be able to submit a plan to the Coastal Commission that will only need limited commission-imposed conditions.

The coastal plan adopted by the Coastal Commission includes land use policies that provide for the type of development proposed at Point Lobos Ranch.

Ashbaugh said the EIR will determine if the proposal — and especially the tram — is consistent with policies in the Monterey County General Plan and whether it will have a significant adverse impact on the environment. The consistency of the project to the general plan is inevitably the decision of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and its consistency to the coastal plan will be determined by the Coastal Commission.

The California Parks and Recreation Department is obviously interested in the project, since Point Lobos Ranch is located across the street from what parks department officials consider the "crown jewel" of the state parks system.

Mary Gunter, area manager of the state parks department, told the Pine Cone/-Outlook the prime concern of the state is the impact of the project on the "resources" of Point Lobos.

She said the department is "working with the developer on access" in an effort to "discourage a direct flow" of lodge patrons into the state reserve.

The state is also concerned with the impact of the increased septic systems needed to handle sewage on the ranch on the underground water supply to Point Lobos.

Increased traffic congestion near the entrance of the state reserve must also be studied, she said. "On any busy day, I'm sure you know, we already have traffic congestion" at the reserve, she said.

And though the coastal plan already has acknowledged the plan use of the ranch, Ms. Gunter said, the tentative maps submitted to the county show "some inconsistencies" with LCP provisions.

For instance, she said, one of the parking lots is located on property the coastal plan states should be a scenic easement.

RANCH DEVELOPERS already have applied formally to the county for rezoning on the ranch to allow the various uses.

The rezoning request will be studied concurrently with the EIR, said Monterey County Planner Janet Brennan.

The developer-employed planners may have already met some of the most probable impacts of the project head on in their proposal.

According to written plans submitted to the planning department, almost all of the buildings — and the tram — will be shielded from public view by the dense forest on the project.

The plan also states the developers would offer to build channelization lanes on Highway 1 to provide easier access in and out of the property. It says a minimum of paved roads would be needed. A 200-space parking lot on an old polo field is also sought for one of the lodges and the hilltop restaurant and conference center.

A 150-space parking lot would be needed for the other lodge.

The plan further states that the tram would be a "funicular" vehicle that would climb a 35 percent average grade to reach the restaurant and conference center located about 700 feet above sea level.

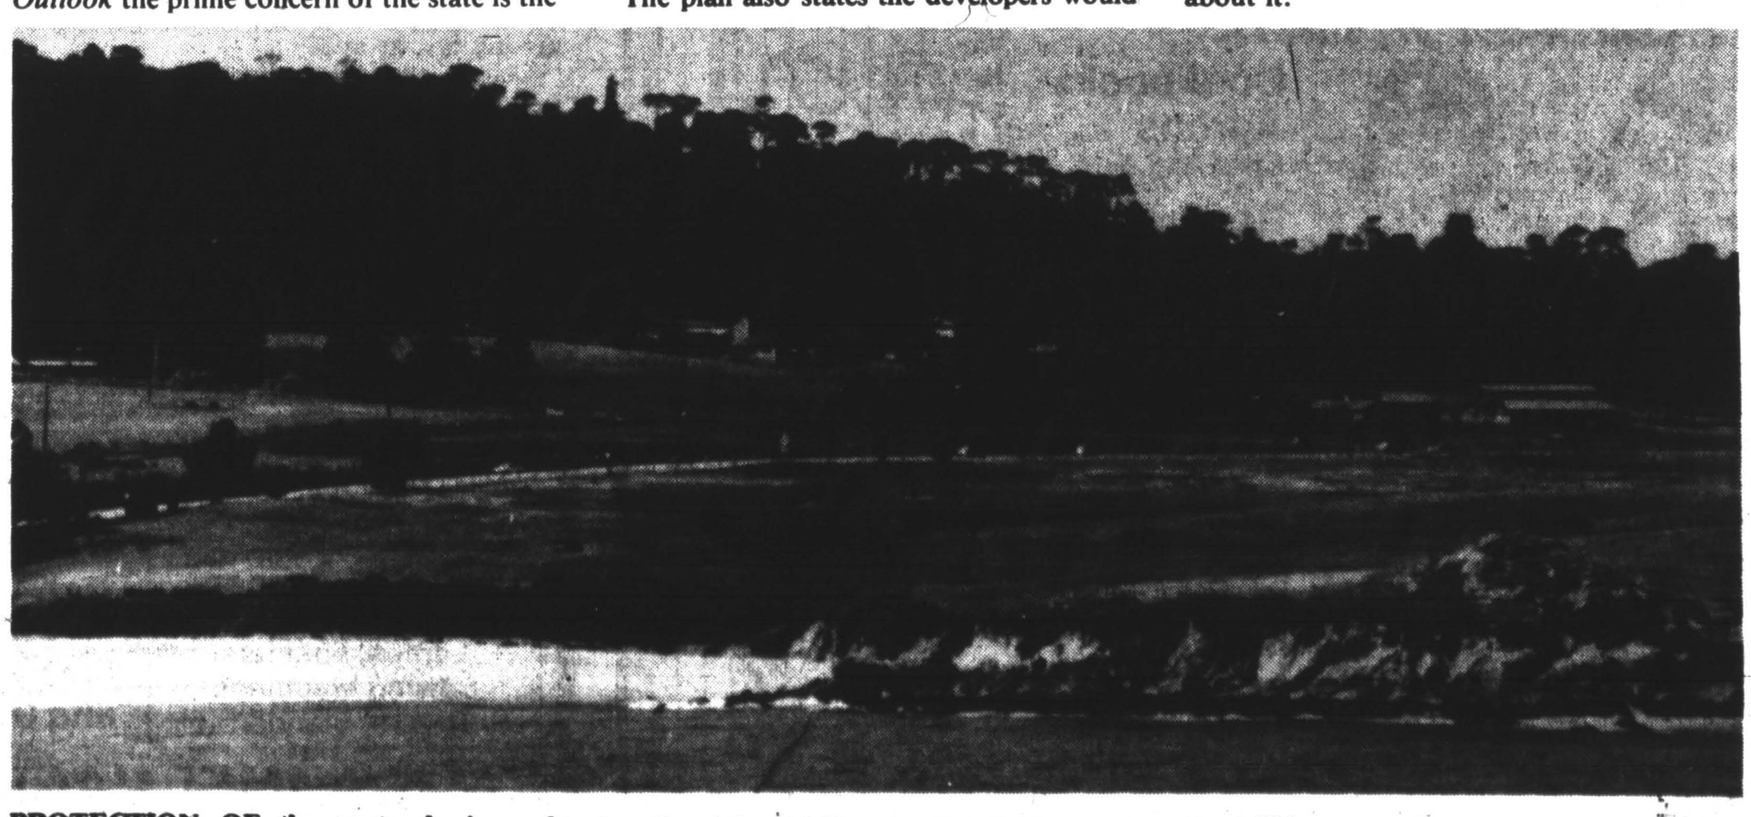

It would be a Swiss-built double-rail, counter weighted electrical tram that would be shielded from view by the vegetation. It would leave the old polo field location and traverse up a canyon to the top of what has been named "Michael's Hill."

The grade of the climb may be a problem when the project reaches the county decision-makers in Salinas. County policies state that no development can take place on hillsides with more than a 30 percent grade.

On the other hand, Ashbaugh said, "if you were to agree that the hilltop site is appropriate for the restaurant and conference center, the tram is a better way of providing access than having individual cars driving up there."

He noted the tram would climb the hillside on a line that would extend southerly from an imaginary straight line from Carmel Point and the Carmelite Monastery. "You can imagine the view," he said.

Ashbaugh said the tram concept "has a lot of merit and the architect should be congratulated, but there are questions we have about it."

Surfabout won't feature a beach bikini contest

SORRY GUYS, there will not be a bikini contest as part of the annual Carmel Beach Surfabout this year.

The bikini contest that created such a fuss in Carmel and almost resulted in cancellation of the entire surfabout by the city council has been eliminated from the event that organizers hope to present the weekend of June 16-17.

Cancellation of the bikini contest was announced in a letter to the council from chairman Brad Johnson of Sunshine Freestyle Sports in Monterey.

The council is to hear a request to hold the event on Carmel Beach when it meets at 7:30 p.m. May 15 at city hall,

"As to avoid any of the controversy which surrounded the approval of last year's event, there will be no bikini contest associated with this year's event," Johnson wrote to the council.

"I will be seeking approval of the surfabout only, just as it has been run for the past four years," the letter continued.

When word leaked that organizers planned a bikini contest last year, city officials steamed and threatened to revoke permission to use the beach.

City officials threw around words such as "crud" and "sexist" in their outcry over the planned bikini contest. They also feared that a bikini contest would draw more crowds filled with "undesirables."

But Johnson headed off trouble by moving the bikini contest to a restaurant in Monterey and the surfabout was held on the beach without incident.

The surfabout itself barely squeaked by the council, which expressed concern that the large number of participants would damage the fragile Carmel Beach banks.

The banks were nearly destroyed by the 1982-83 winter storms. The popular sand castle contest was cancelled last year because of the very same concerns.

"As we proved last year, when the condition of the banks were most critical, the people who attend the surfabout are a responsible group who can be trusted to cooperate with the city's special requests regarding this event," Johnson wrote.

In the entry form, organizers made a point to remind participants of the damage to the beach banks.

"The city of Carmel is very concerned about the erosion of the banks along Carmel Beach and rightfully so," the entry information sheet stated.

'WE MUST do everything possible to use the existing stairways down to the beach. Please, do not slide down, roll down, or walk down the banks along Scenic Avenue.

"If you see someone going down the banks say something. They could ruin it for all of us."

The surfers also earned respect from many area people when they saved the lives of five scuba divers in trouble off the coast while the surfabout was underway, Johnson pointed out.

Last year there were 195 contestants in the event.

In other action May 15, the council is expected to hear an appeal from council members David Maradei and Helen Arnold that challenges planning commission approval of actor Clint Eastwood's downtown commercial project.

Eastwood wants to build a two-story combined commercial and office complex on the west side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues. The property currently is the site of the Shell Fisher gallery building, the Nishi Nursery and a vacant storage lot.

Planners approved the project in February, but Maradei and Mrs. Arnold believe the complex is not consistent with the city general plan or building design goals.

The council originally was to hear the appeal in April, but twice has postponed action; once at the request of architect George Brook-Kothlow and another time at the request of Mrs. Arnold.

The council also is to discuss a request from San Antonio Street residents to ban parking on that road north of Ocean Avenue.

The residents believe that the cars create access problems for emergency vehicles.

The council also will hear a request from Tim Mallery to add two additional units to the Dolores Lodge, east side of Dolores Street between Third and Fourth avenues.

THERE WILL be plenty of surfing activities, but no official bikini contest during the annual Surfabout contest June 16-17 on Carmel Beach, organizers have told the Carmel City Council. The council will discuss the surfabout May 15.

White appointed member of Carmel forestry panel

KEN WHITE has traded school budgets for tree reports.

White, the former president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education who chose not to seek re-election last November, has been appointed to the Carmel Forestry Commission. He lives in Carmel.

White was unanimously appointed by the city council during a special morning meeting Saturday, May 5. He will replace Robert Evans, who recently resigned.

White promised to be stingy when it comes to tree removal requests, wants to continue the seedling give-away program and opposes any trimming of city trees for views, he told the council during the interview that morning.

"I'm in that situation (where trees block views) behind La Playa with the eucalyptus trees," White said. "If the trees are trimmed for health reasons, I'm very happy. If they are not, then that's the way it is. That's life."

Asked by Mayor Charlotte Townsend if he would be "uncomfortable" rejecting a tree removal for friends or neighbors, White responded: "I have no problem with that whatsoever if I knew in my mind and heart that there is a reasonable option (for building plans). Even if it was me."

White favors a "balanced" forest with a mixture of trees, he said in response to a question about the Monterey Pines.

He said there are a couple of major problems with the Monterey Pine. One is that the trees are targets of bark beetles and another problem is their age, which poses potential safety problems.

The older pines need to be "watched carefully" because of the potential safety hazard, he said.

"As we move into the next 10 years we may move into the direction of planting other trees for some balance in the forest," he said.

In addition to some pines, the city also should consider planting redwoods, eucalyptus and firs, he said.

Certain eucalyptus varieties are a "dirty tree. If it's on the next block it's beautiful," White laughed.

But White said the Australian eucalyptus is a "relatively clean" tree. "I think that's something that should be looked into."

The city should expand its tree give-away program, White believes.

"We should add something to the program and that is to work with youth groups to help people plant their trees," he said. "I can plant mine, but there are lots of people who can't. I think we should recognize that."

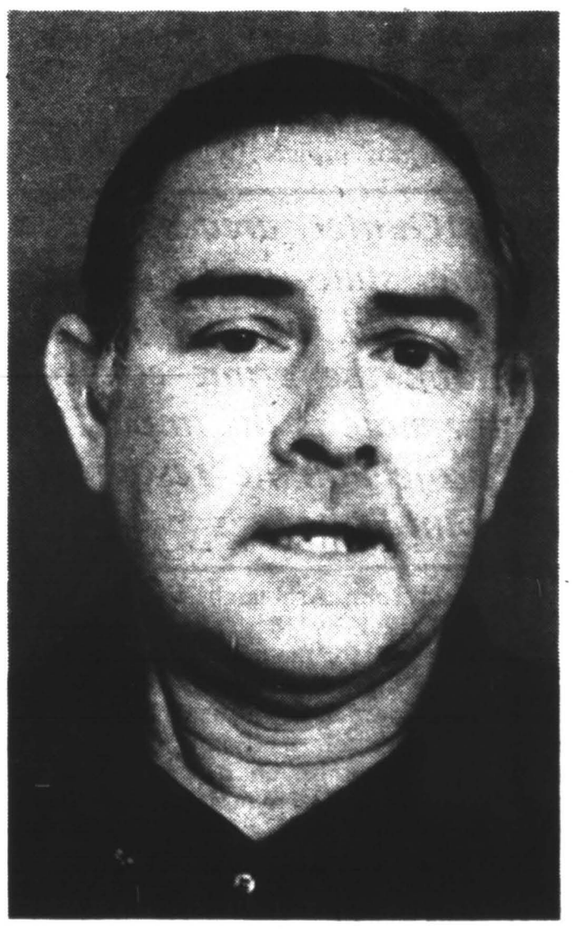

White told the council he wants to serve on the forestry commssion because "I'm very concerned about the forest and the habitat we live in."

White, who has lived in Carmel for 25 years, majored in physical education at Chico State University. He also developed an interest in the life sciences and fell just a "few units short" of a second major in that area.

White has taught botany and life science at Monterey High School, where he curently teaches physical education and is the athletic director.

White served as president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education for four years before his decision not to run again in November 1983.

He also was the chairman of the now-disbanded city recreation committee, which successfully lobbied the council to implement a summer program this year.

The meteoric rise and fall of a bank and its shareholders to seat Levy rather than go through a prolonged and damaging proxy fight. Mr. Levy has enough votes to secure a seat on the board."

Reportedly, Levy was the one that blew the whistle on the Bank of Carmel for exceeding its federal limit on loans, which is 15 percent of the bank's assets.

Levy's complaint was reported in the Wall Street Journal in a story about brokerage houses that took over Levy's New York-based Information Displays Inc. firm because Levy could not meet his loan payments.

Levy allegedly complained to the brokerage houses that an "unnamed West Coast bank" withdraw his line of credit. The Wall Street Journal did not report the name of the bank. However, later it was learned that the institutiion is the Bank of Carmel.

Levy also owns about 162 acres in Sand City where he planed a condominium complex. Sand City officials said they have no idea what impact recent developments will have on his project.

Levy did not return repeated telephone calls to his office. State and federal investigators would not say whether they have contacted Levy.

• How does Robert Boynton, former president and chief executive officer of the parent Carmel Bancorporation fit into the investigation?

Boynton, who was unavailable for comment, resigned effective April 22 and the announcement was made at the annual meeting April 25.

Federal and state officials refuse to say whether Boynton is under investigation.

However, a top bank official indicated he is.

"Officers no longer with the bank will have to be looked at very carefully," the source said. The statement later was confirmed by another high-ranking bank official who said investigators want to know whether there is some kind of personal link between Levy and Boynton. So far, that link has not been established, the sources said.

• How could the Bank of Carmel approve a series of loans so large that it jeopardized its financial solvency and may violate federal banking laws?

So far, no one has answered that question.

A bank source said it is normal procedure for the board of directors to "review" large loans. Two sources confirmed that the loans that got the bank into financial trouble were not seen by the board.

State and federal banking officals refused to confirm or deny that.

• Why didn't auditors catch the problem earlier?

Apparently the loan was made after the audit report and state and federal banking officials deny even talking with the independent auditors.

WILLIAM DOOLITTLE, a Carmel investment counselor, said he does not believe the closure of the bank will seriously hurt the business climate of the city of Carmel, though he called the action "a definite shock. It is so unexpected in a community of our size and character."

But, he added, "the impact on retail sales (in the city) will not be that significant," he said.

The major impact will be on the net worth of the individual Carmel Bancorporation shareholders, Doolittle said.

"The shareholders obviously bear the risk in this thing," he said. Since Carmel Bancorporation stocks did not pay dividends, nobody depended on a steady flow of income from those shares, he added.

But individuals who depended on the local bank for loans might also find problems getting loans in larger banks, Doolittle said.

"The so-called character loans will go by the wayside," he said, especially if the Carmel bank is purchased by a larger chain which, he said, "will run a tight ship for a while, you can be sure of that."

Character loans are made to people who may not have the finest credit ratings in town but who show good character and a sincere willingness to pay back the loans, Doolittle said.

"It's like all the banks were like 30 years ago," he said. "They do look at financial statements, but its not often their prime motivator when it's time to approve a loan."

Obviously, such loans are more risky for a bank to make and it may be one of the factors that led to the downfall of the National Bank of Carmel, he said.

Former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo said the prospect that no locally-owned and operated bank will exist in Carmel disturbs him, though he believes the "town won't be hurt" directly by the closure of the Carmel bank.

"Big banks don't offer anything but problems," he said.

"The unfortunate thing about this is that some straight-up people who were really trying to help this town got screwed by a son of a bitch or two who came around," Laiolo said.

ED LEE of Carmel, a candidate for the Fifth Monterey County Supervisorial District, told a group of area Sierra Club members that coalitions of environmental activist organizations have utilized Tom Hayden-type techniques to slow the healthy progression of growth in Monterey County.

KARIN STRASSER KAUFFMAN, a Carmel Valley candidate for the Fifth Monterey County Supervisorial Dist..ct, called candidate Ed Lee's criticism of area "coalitions" an example of "hate mongering" at a candidates' forum sponsored by the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club last week.

Fifth District supervisor candidates take off the gloves; exchange harsh political rhetoric

By JOE LIVERNOIS

FIFTH DISTRICT supervisorial candidates squared off in an emotional debate that sparked the first fireworks of the campaign last week in the Carmel High School library.

Candidate Karin Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley challenged fellow candidate Ed Lee's criticism of the use of "coalition" type politics on the Monterey Peninsula and characterized Lee's criticism as "hate mongering" and "scare tactics."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman insisted that Lee explain why he continues to denounce what he calls the "nattering nabobs of negativism" on the Monterey Peninsula who he believes want to halt growth by political means.

'Brunn takes great pleasure saying he blocked the master plan. I take great pleasure saying I contributed to it and it is too bad we didn't have it two or three years ago.'

The exchange ended a two-hour forum sponsored by the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club in the Carmel High School library and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman seized the opportunity to force an explanation from Lee because so many of the members of the coalitions he criticized are Sierra Club members.

The Sierra Club forum May 2 was also the third debate of the day between Fifth District candidates.

Other candidates included Howard Brunn of Carmel and Dortha Roesler of Toro Park. Candidate Neill Gardner of Monterey was on hand for about a half hour to take photographs of the Sierra Club forum for the Monterey Peninsula weekly newspaper he edits but did not participate in the discussion.

When pressed by Mrs. Strasser Kauffman, Lee criticized the "coalition politics" of certain groups on the Monterey Peninsula, but he said there is no evidence that Tom Hayden, the '60s radical turned California assemblyman, has any influence on the local group, though Hayden used coalition politics effectively in California to build a base of support.

Lee named the Forest Committee of Pebble Beach, Friends of Grove of Pacific Grove and the Emergency Coalition against Airport Expansion as examples of groups that "oppose everything."

LEE, A MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District director, also drubbed fellow water district director John Williams by lumping his supporters into what he called the "John Williams Anti-Dam Coalition."

"Nattering nabobs of negativism" was an expression coined by former Vice President Spiro Agnew to describe critics of the Nixon administration. Lee said that while he does not "admire" the vice president who was forced to resign when he pleaded nolo contendere to various tax evasion charges, "Spiro Agnew did have some good lines."

He described the local nabobs as "people who believe in limiting growth only by blocking dams and not building freeways. They have a negative approach to everything."

On the Monterey Peninsula, coalition politics got its birth at Monterey Peninsula College, according to Lee, where it was subsequently "honed" to a fine art. Mrs. Strasser Kauffman is on leave as a political science instructor at MPC.

"Why do you keep bringing this up?" Mrs. Strasser Kauffman asked. "Especially when none of us feel that way. I don't understand why you continue to describe these groups as radical gangs. It's hate-mongering and it's a scare tactic and we don't need either in the campaign.

"We don't need this animosity, this artificial animosity designed to make people feel uncomfortable. That's why we got rid of Bill Peters."

After Lee's description of coalition politics, Brunn said he was proud to belong to some of the groups Lee might criticize, like the Odello Land Acquisition Fund, which collected money to help purchase the west side of the Odello artichoke farm, eventually dedicated to the state.

"I love coalitions if they get things done," Brunn said.

Mrs. Roesler apparently is opposed to coalitions. She said that as a Toro Park resident, "I feel like I live in Coalition Land" and described a neighbor who belongs to coalition groups "and she's against everything."

Mrs. Roesler is president of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association.

THE EXCHANGE over the coalition issue was not the first time in the evening that Mrs. Strasser Kauffman was on the offensive. Earlier she said she was "shocked" that other candidates said in previous candidate forums they would support an increase in densities in area land use plans to encourage cheaper housing.

Again, Lee argued that he said the county "might" have to consider increased densities to accommodate cheaper housing, but only as a last resort.

Lee also criticized Brunn after Brunn boasted he signed the Carmel city lawsuit against the county that forced the county to prepare an environmental impact report for the Carmel Valley Master Plan after the board of supervisors had already certified the master plan in 1980, while Brunn was a Carmel City Council member.

"Brunn takes great pleasure saying he blocked the master plan," Lee said. "I take great pleasure saying I contributed to it and it is too bad we didn't have it two or three years ago."

'We don't need this animosity, this artificial animosity designed to make people feel uncomfortable. That's why we got rid of Bill Peters.'

Brunn, Mrs. Strasser Kauffman and Lee all said they believe Carmel Valley may not be able to handle all the development allowed over a 20-year period by its master plan, which will be considered for certification by the board of supervisors May 15.

"The Carmel Valley Master Plan calls for more units than Carmel Valley can sustain," Brunn said.

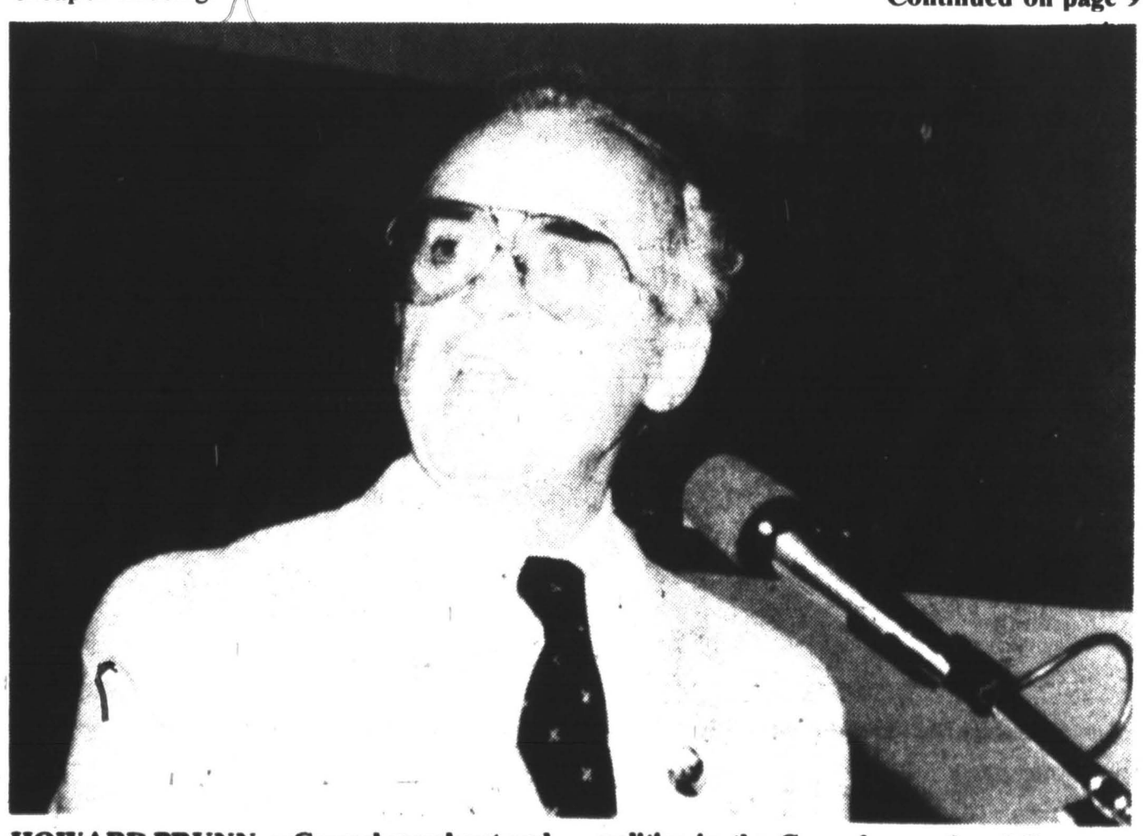

"If we follow the master plan, we will have a 50 percent population increase in Carmel Valley," said Mrs. Strasser Kauffman.

"I would say perhaps Carmel Valley is

DORTHA ROESLER, a Fifth Monterey County Supervisorial candidate, called her home community of Toro Park Estates "Coalition City" at a Sierra Club-sponsored candidates' forum last week. She appeared to have agreed with fellow candidate Ed Lee's assessment that coalition-type politics on the Monterey Peninsula are affecting land use decisions.

HOWARD BRUNN, a Carmel merchant and candidate for the Fifth Monterey County Supervisorial District, told a group of Sierra Club members last week he is "proud" to have participated in the coalition-type of politics in the Carmel area that fellow candidate Ed Lee has criticized during his campaign.

Carmel planner Bob Griggs plans to retire in January

By MICHAEL GARDNER

ROBERT GRIGGS, who just eight months ago was elevated to a newly created position as director of Carmel community planning and building, will retire effective Jan. 15, 1985.

Griggs announced his retirement after 17 years with the city in a letter to City Administrator Doug Schmitz last week. He did not reveal the reasons behind his decision.

Griggs will stay with the city until his retirement to complete several special projects, Schmitz told the Carmel Pine Cone/-Carmel Valley Outlook May 3.

The top priority for Griggs will be to supervise the proposed plan to renovate Sunset Center. A recently released report estimates that it will cost the city about $200,000 to upgrade the building, Schmitz said.

Other projects for Griggs will include: development of an energy conservation program, report on the city telephone system, and a plan to locate newspaper racks in a central location with conforming designs.

Schmitz does not plan to replace Griggs until Jan. 15. Tentatively most of Griggs' day-to-day duties are expected to be divided between Assistant Planning Director Diane White and Chiharu ("Butch") Maloney, the building inspector.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend said that "much of what Carmel-by-the-Sea is today can be directly attributed to Bob."

The mayor praised Griggs' "long hours and hard work" for the city over the past 17 years. And despite all the controversy and heated topics over the years, Griggs has maintained his easygoing, helpful attitude, she said.

"I have never seen him brusque or flustered," the mayor said. "Bob always remained calm, cool and collected."

Planning commission chairwoman Sandy Swain called Griggs "a true friend, a mentor."

"Bob has always been there when I needed a question answered, background information or just to talk about planning issues in the city," Ms. Swain said. "I'm really sorry to see him go. He will be sorely missed by one and all."

Griggs' resignation comes at a time of controversy at city hall as business people have complained of an alleged illegal moratorium on use permits. At the same time city planners are under fire from merchants because of perceived anti-business provisions in the implementing ordinances for the 1983 Carmel General Plan. (See related story, this issue.)

Griggs was hired in August of 1966 as the city building inspector. Previously he had worked in that capacity with the city of Monterey. He was named planning director in 1972.

Schmitz, in late August of 1983, announced a reorganization of the city planning department into the department of community building and planning. Griggs was named to head the new department.

ROBERT GRIGGS, who has served the city planning department in various capacities over the past 17 years, has announced he will retire effective Jan. 15, 1985. (Photo by Michael Gardner.)

Supervisor candidates slug it out

reaching the point" that it cannot handle much more growth, Lee said, and added that population centers should be located closer to job centers.

Forum moderator Carl Pohlhammer asked the candidates "how they would vote" if projects that would sacrifice the environment in favor of job opportunities and residential communities are brought before the board of supervisors.

Though Mrs. Strasser Kauffman said the question presented an "artificial dilemma," she joined all the others and said both environmental and human concerns can be accommodated.

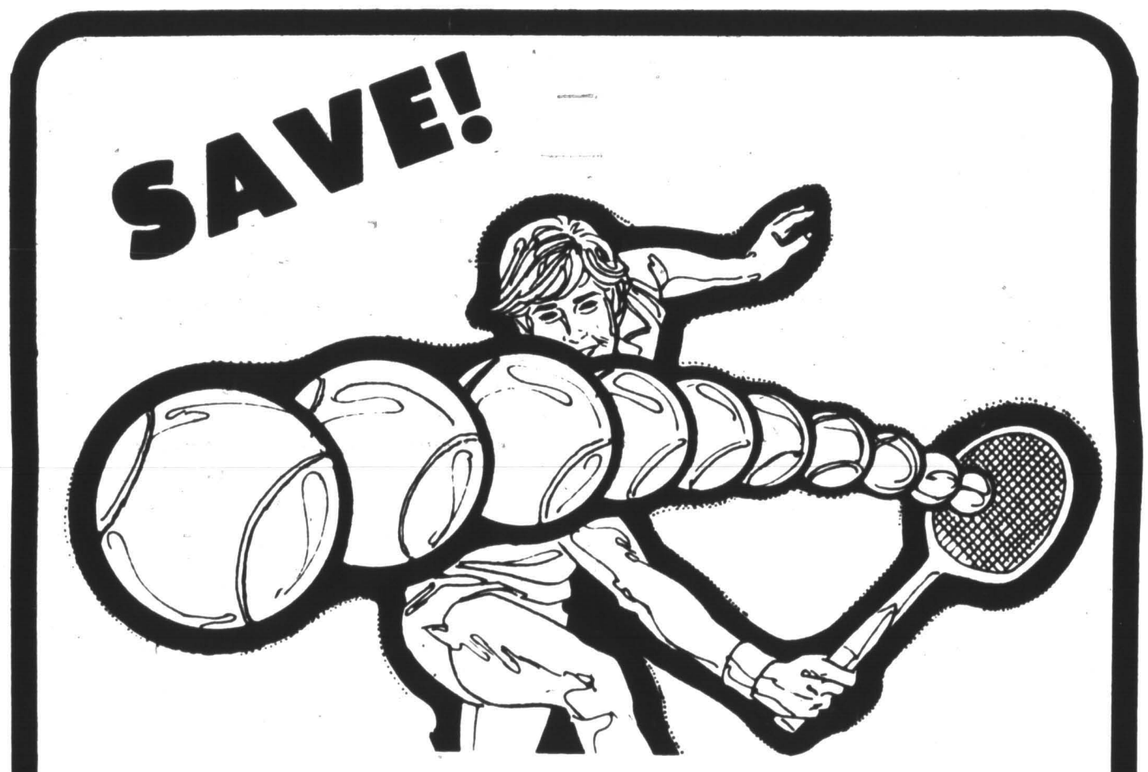

The five candidates seek election to the Fifth District supervisorial position now occupied by William Peters of Carmel Valley. Election day is June 5.

If none of the five candidates can manage to get more than 50 percent of the votes, a runoff election between the two top vote-getters will be conducted during the general election in November.

The Fifth District includes the Big Sur coast, Carmel and Carmel Valley, the strip of land along Highway 68 to Toro Park Estates and portions of Monterey and Pebble Beach.

Carmel Valley Perspective

'Shocking' CV Plan to be considered May 15

By JOE LIVERNOIS

A CARMEL VALLEY Master Plan with changes called "shockers" by the president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will be considered by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors May 15 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Robert Greenwood, the CVPOA president and a member of the citizens advisory committee that wrote the first draft of the plan before it went to the Monterey County Planning Commission, told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook last week he believes the plan that left the commission could be "seriously flawed."

"I say this because the planning commission has introduced two changes in the allocation system and they are shockers," he said.

The CVPOA executive committee met last week in Carmel Valley to urge the board of supervisors to change several policies in the implementation section of the plan.

The first problem, according to Greenwood, is language in the plan that allows up to 220 newly subdivided lots in the first year of the plan.

The average annual allocation is 55 lots for the 20-year jurisdiction of the plan, but the planning commission draft allows 220 new lots in the first year because commissioners believed the four-year moratorium on development in Carmel Valley created a hardship for a lot of developers.

The commission said the 20-year life of the plan should start retroactively beginning in 1980, which was when the board of supervisors first certified the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

The plan was subsequently decertified by a Monterey County Superior Court judge because insufficient environmental data was accumulated before the board adopted it. The judge also declared a moratcrium on most use permits for building in Carmel Valley.

Planning Commissioners reasoned that the retroactive plan should allow for development of those lots not subdivided in those four years and, thus, recommended the first-year number of 220 lots.

CVPOA BOARD members said they believe the life of the document should begin when supervisors readopt the plan later this year.

"When the plan goes into effect, it will already be year number five," Greenwood said. "That's pretty tricky. From what I understand, plans never work that way. We feel a 20-year plan is a 20-year plan and it starts when the board certifies it."

The CVPOA also believes the early surge of 220 new subdivided lots in the first year could be disastrous.

LAND USE policies that will affect Carmel Valley, seen from an aerial shot (above), for the next 15 to 20 years will be discussed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in a hearing in the Monterey County Courthouse May 15 when a public hearing on the Carmel Valley Master Plan is opened. After eight years, the plan has become honed down to the point that Fifth District Supervisor William Peters' aide, Steve Slade, said he does not expect a lot of controversy to arise from the public hearing.

Greenwood pointed out that the plan calls for a mandatory review of the entire plan after two years because the plan is "untried and...experimental."

"If the fairness of the technique is so uncertain, why not wait for the review before committing a big chunk of the 20-year quota?" Greenwood asked.

The second serious concern expressed by the CVPOA board is the planning commission change of wording over what can be allocated annually.

The new wording says the annual allocation applies only to lots which "may be offered for sale" that year and not to the issuance of tentative maps for subdivisions, Greenwood said.

"It means that the county could approve two projects of the scale of Carmel Valley Ranch, using up most of the 20-year quota and leaving smaller landowners in the valley unable to subdivide," Greenwood said.

The plan proposes a build-out quota of 2,100 lots in the 20-year life of the plan — whenever it begins. Since there are already nearly 1,000 lots of record approved in Carmel Valley, about 1,100 new lots can be created by subdivision over the 20-year period.

THE CVPOA board said it also opposes the inclusion of the Canada de la Segunda Road plan line on master plan maps.

The plan line for the "major arterial road" that would join Carmel Valley Road and the Salinas-Monterey Highway from near the Rancho Canada and Laguna Seca golf clubs "has always been opposed" by the CVPOA, Greenwood said.

The plan line was not included in the recommended draft of the citizens advisory committee that was sent to the planning commission.

Fifth District Supervisor William Peters was not available for comment about the plan last week and early this week, but his aide, Steve Slade, told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook he believes "there is not a lot of controversy left" with the master plan.

He said he believes the concerns of the CVPOA can be worked out.

He also said the master plan could be adopted by the board of supervisors the same day it holds a public hearing on the plan May 15.

"The whole system was set up so there would not be much left for the supervisors once it reaches the board," Slade said.

The master plan was first adopted by the board of supervisors in 1980 after four years of writing and rewriting by a citizens advisory committee, the planning commission and the board of supervisors.

Within two months, the plan was challenged in Monterey County Superior Court and Judge Richard Silver ruled the plan was invalid because an environmental impact report had not been prepared before the plan was adopted.

In subsequent years, an EIR was written and certified. Early last year, a nine-person citizens advisory committee rewrote the plan to include EIR considerations and policies included in a Monterey County General Plan, which was adopted by the board of supervisors in 1981.

Adoption of the plan by the board of supervisors will end the moratorium on discretionary use permits issued by the county for development in Carmel Valley.

Discretionary use permits are permits that require an environmental impact report.

Greenwood noted that some planning commissioners had said they wanted to meet with the citizens advisory committee members to explain the changes the commission made to the draft of the plan prepared by the advisory committee. That meeting never materialized.

MS Hope Chest campaign opens

Sunday, May 13 is the official opening of the 1984 Multiple Sclerosis Society Hope Chest Campaign. On that day, people from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties will join volunteers across the nation who will ring doorbells to collect money to assist in the fight against multiple sclerosis.

The campaign will continue through Father's Day, June 17.

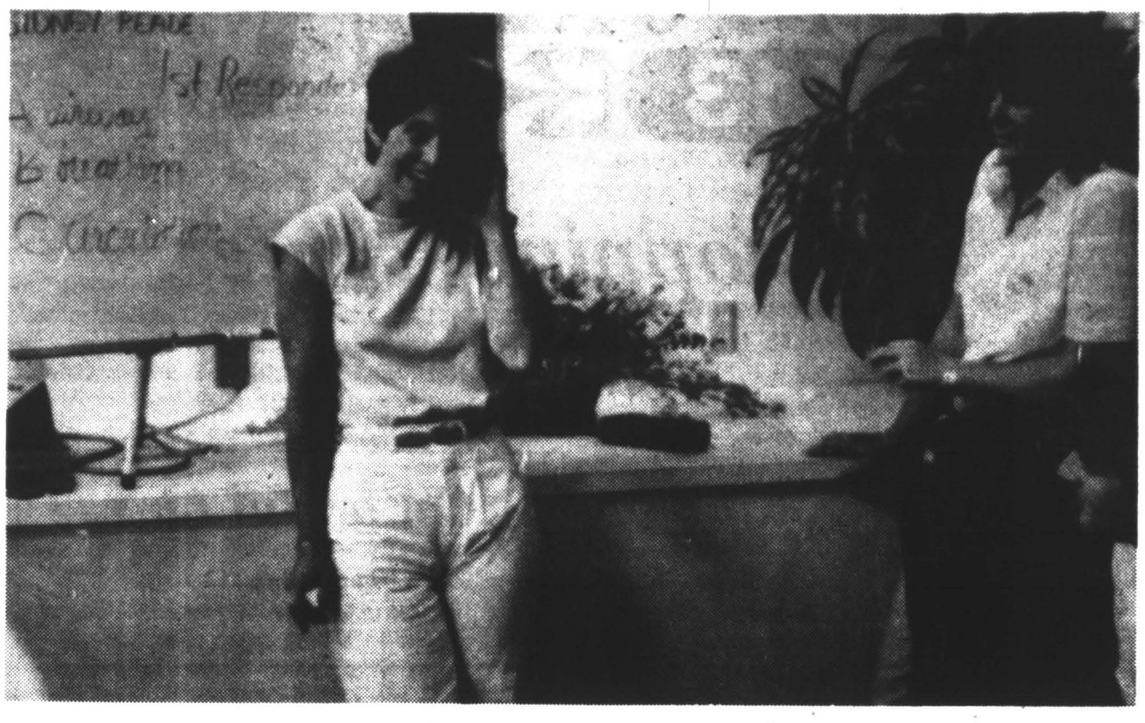

Multiple sclerosis is a debilitating and often disabling disease of the central nervous system. Symptoms vary in each individual, depending on the site of damage and range from mild to severe. For more information, call 758-1663.

Carmel Valley Perspective

CARMEL VALLEY RANCH employees heard Sidney Reade (left), a Mid-Valley Fire District firefighter and public education specialist, as she explained "first response" techniques for persons who arrive at the scene of an emergency. (Photograph by Joe Livernois.)

Training bystanders to help save lives in Carmel Valley

PASSERSBY CAN probably do as much in a few minutes to save a trauma victim as any of the medical professionals who will treat the victim.

And Sidney Reade, a Mid-Valley Fire District firefighter and public education specialist, has made a campaign of educating would-be life savers, who in emergency medical profession parlance would be known as "first responders," around Carmel Valley.

Ms. Reade teaches the "ABCs" of first response to any group of persons willing to spend about four hours in a training seminar she teaches.

"Trauma is the leading cause of death," she said. "And the care victims get from the time of the incident to the time they get to the hospital is the most important."

Trauma includes a broad array of injury and suffering from heart attacks and strokes to injuries in vehicle accidents and asphyxiation.

"If the people who happen to be around when the incident occurs know what to do, they can prevent a death," Ms. Reade said. For instance, a person without a heartbeat can die within four to six minutes.

"Mid-Valley is a six-mile long district," she said. "We have a response time of up to four to six to 10 minutes. So if people in Mid-Valley are trained for first response, the victim has a better chance of living."

Ms. Reade has trained about 150 employees of Carmel Valley businesses in the past year, including all employees at Carmel Valley Ranch.

Last week, she was back at the ranch to give a refresher course to Carmel Valley Ranch administrators.

"If anything happens to me, I want everyone here to know what to do," cracked Carmel Valley Ranch president Johnny Pott.

Once Ms. Reade gives a seminar, she will return every year to reinforce life-saving information. "You tend to forget if you don't have a chance to use it," she said.

"THE MOST important thing is to remain calm," she said. "If the person who has stepped forward to help gets excited, so will the victim and so will everyone else."

Obviously, it is also important to get an ambulance to the scene. The "responder" should suggest that another person, if available, telephone the Monterey County dispatcher — the 911 number — as soon as possible.

If no one else is near, the responder should call 911, but only after checking and treating the victim.

She also drills her students to check the "ABCs" — airways, breathing and circulation — and respond to signs that the victim is not breathing or that the heart is not pumping.

She teaches mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques during her seminar.

CPR by a first responder could have saved the life of up to 20 percent of the heart attack victims who die annually, she said. More than 670,000 persons die of heart attacks every year, she added.

In Monterey County, the link between the dispatchers, fire districts and ambulance services and hospitals is "very smooth," Ms. Reade said. "It's been working well for several years now. The only link that has not been trained is the first responder and that's why we are training as many groups as we can."

Ms. Reade said she is willing to teach her seminars to any interested group.

She said she prefers to teach groups of up to 10 at a time. In the case of Carmel Valley Ranch, for instance, she trained individual groups of golf course employees, tennis employees, lodge workers and administrators.

She brings her two dummies, including Annie, the adult woman, and Susie, the baby.

Each seminar participant gets hands-on experience with the dummies. "We use the same physical techniques with the dummies that the first responder would use with a victim," Ms. Reade said, "though obviously the emotions are not the same."

Old schoolhouse in Carmel Valley may become a community center

THE OLD single room schoolhouse known as Logan Hall soon may become a community center in Mid-Carmel Valley.

A plan to renovate Logan Hall as a community center will be presented to the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education when it meets at 7 p.m., Monday, May 14 at Carmel River School, southeast corner of Monte Verde Street and 15th Avenue.

Logan Hall is now in a deteriorated condition, hidden behind weeds and debris on an acre of school district land adjacent to the Mid-Valley Fire Station on Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1.

Logan Hall was one of the first schools in Carmel Valley. It served area children until Carmelo School was constructed. Carmelo School, which is directly across the street from Logan Hall, also has closed.

The land was donated to the district by the Roy Meadows family.

Supt. William Rand told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook he will present the proposal to trustees at the May 14 session.

Rand wants preliminary approval of the proposal before he begins to work out an agreement with the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors, who are: Ed Haber, Doug Despard, Dick Krueger, Bill Brown and Steve Figpen.

It was the board that first advanced the plan, which envisions that the grounds and Logan Hall will be renovated for use as a community center, training area for firefighters and school district classroom.

Directors want to work out a two-phase project for the grounds and building renovation that will be financed through community donations, Haber said May 3.

The fire district already has received a $5,000 donation and hopes to raise an additional $75,000 to $150,000 for the renovation project in coming years.

The first goal of the directors is to rehabilitate the grounds, which now are covered by weeds and debris, Haber said.

Directors want to build a mini-recreation area on the grounds for firefighters that would include a barbecue area, picnic tables, horseshoe pit and badminton court.

Then directors plan to renovate the 2,500 sq. ft. building, which needs restroom facilities, a new roof, new windows, new floor and painting, he continued.

'EVENTUALLY, the building could be used for the fire department and school for training and classes. We would like to see it used as a community center for town meetings and voting. It's taking something usable and using it,'' Haber said.

Haber hopes the community will financially support the project, as they did the purchase of the ambulance and "jaws of life" rescue equipment.

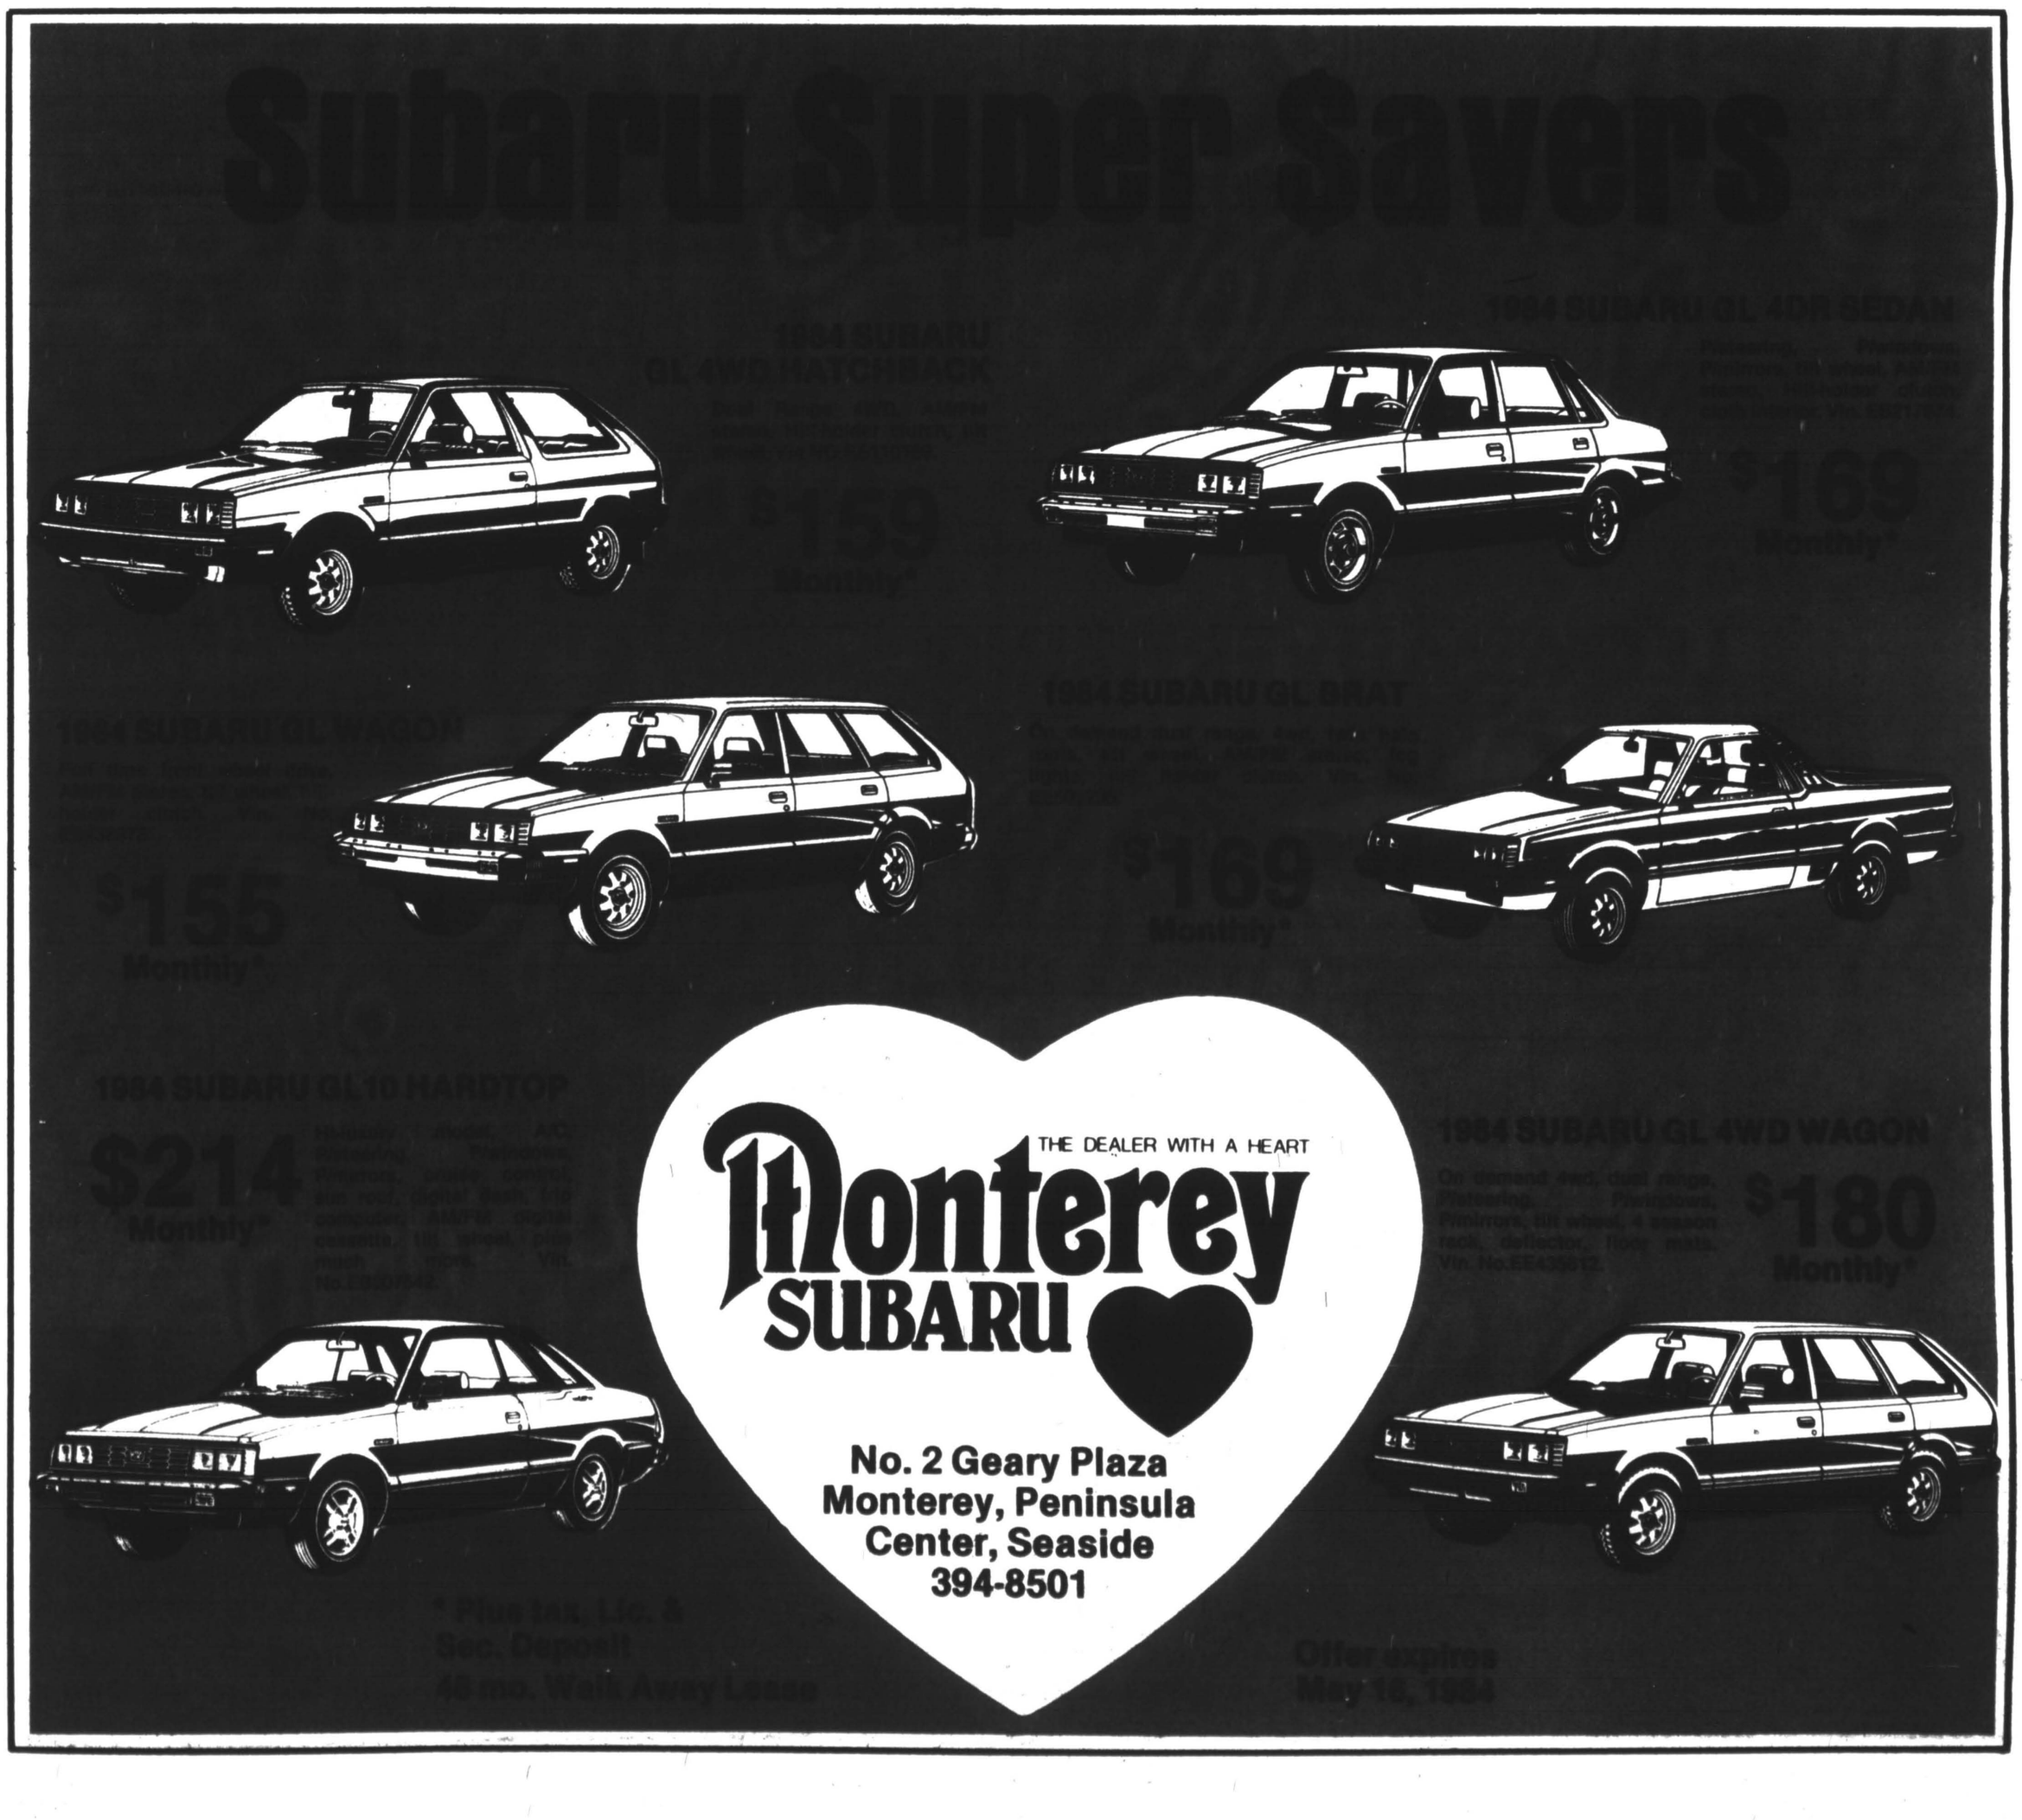

In other action May 14, trustees will review two leftover items from their approval of the bid to renovate Carmel High School this summer.

The board is to look at the cost of exterior painting, which was estimated at $100,000, and renovation of the photography laboratory at an approximate cost of $45,000.

Rand said he thinks the price tags can be reduced through changes in plans and by getting separate bids for the two projects.

Carmel school district still faces serious financial woes

By MICHAEL GARDNER

DESPITE optimism about advances in public school financing thanks to the 1983 education-reform bill SB 813, the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education still is in financial trouble.

Trustees will face an estimated $120,000 deficit in the tentative 1984-85 budget of $6.75 million when they meet in a special study session at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, May 10 in the Carmel Middle School library, Carmel Valley Road about one mile east of Highway 1.

The bad news does not stop with the deficit itself. In addition to the anticipated $120,000 in cuts to balance the budget, trustees must also find some way to fund staff pay increases and an obligatory reserve to handle emergencies, Business Manager Ed Miyasaki told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook May 7.

Staff pay raises are a big question mark again this year. The Association of Carmel Teachers has not specified a pay hike percentage in its proposed 1984-85 contract. Rather, teachers want any new unanticipated monies to be allocated for salaries.

The estimated 1984-85 budget does not include any income that would fall into the "new monies" category proposed by the teachers.

Teachers in the 1983-84 contract received a 2 percent pay increase. It costs the district about $50,000 for every 1 percent across-the-board staff pay increase.

Additionally, trustees will have to cut even more if they want to budget for a reserve balance.

Miyasaki said that in previous years school boards attempted to maintain a 5 percent reserve for emergencies.

"General practice calls for 5 percent, but I don't know of any school district that has 5 percent in this day and age," he said.

The previous board chopped about $300,000 from the estimated budget last May, but gambled that new education financing through SB 813 would negate the need to trim an additional $400,000.

That gamble paid off.

But despite all of the SB 813 provisions for extra dollars, the Carmel district cannot overcome its Achilles' heel — declining enrollment.

Once again the district will experience a steep decline in attendance, which is the basis for all school budgets.

THE STATE, through its revenue limit formulas, paid the Carmel district $2,249 for each of its 2,129 students, or average daily attendance (ADA).

The state in 1983-84 provided extra funds to districts with declining enrollment based on a percentage of the number of lost students.

But this extra money no longer is available, which means revenue limit funds in Carmel will decrease by 1.3 percent in 1984-85, Miyasaki said.

This decrease will occur despite the fact that the state will allow districts with declining enrollment to use the previous year's figure.

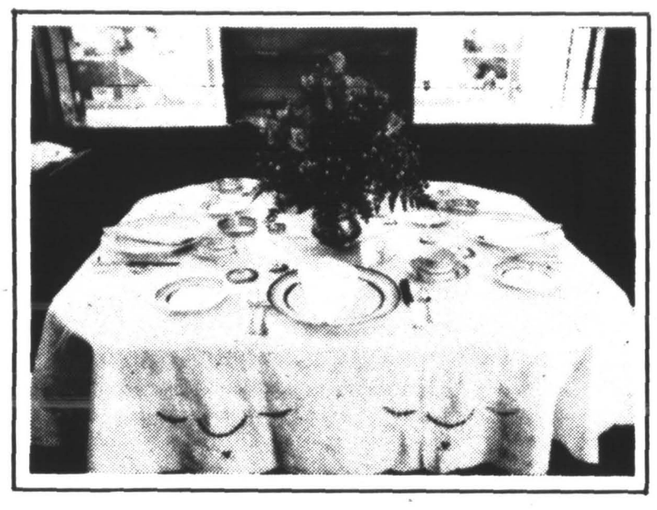

Thus Carmel with its anticipated 2,001 ADA in 1984-85 will receive state funds based on the 2,129 students who attend schools this year.

If the state had not allowed the higher ADA figure to be used, Carmel would have lost $2,310 (the 1984-85 ADA payment per student) for each loss in enrollment, or a total of $295,680.

The 1984-85 tentative budget to be presented to trustees May 10 is based on an anticipated 5 percent increase in state funding, Miyasaki said.

The 5 percent cost of living adjustment is a compromise figure based on reports from Sacramento, Miyasaki said.

Gov. George Deukmejian recommended a 3.7 percent hike for public education in his proposed state budget released in January.

Police conduct annual review

"Keep up the good work," Mayor Charlotte Townsend said to the officers of the Carmel Police Department at the Second Annual Inspection and Award Ceremonies April 24.

The good work of the department was evidenced by a number of awards to officers for outstanding service, as well as to members of the community who supported their work.

The occasion featured a full-scale inspection of the officers in their now-familiar dark blue uniforms. The inspection was conducted by Police Chief Jack McGilvray, Mayor Townsend and City Administrator Doug Schmitz. It must have been a special moment also for Asst. Chief Bob Fischer, as it would be his last such occasion before his retirement early next year.

Chief McGilvray welcomed up to 50 persons who had gathered for this first public inspection, and told them it was also the first of what "we hope will be many award ceremonies in the future." The awards demonstrated the variety of skills found in the department itself and the different types of contributions made by the public.

Mayor Townsend, in her concluding remarks, spoke of the special nature of the city, and the people who live here. "I believe we have a very special police department, too," she said. "It's something intrinsic — a professionalism, and a caring. Thank you very much, from all of us."

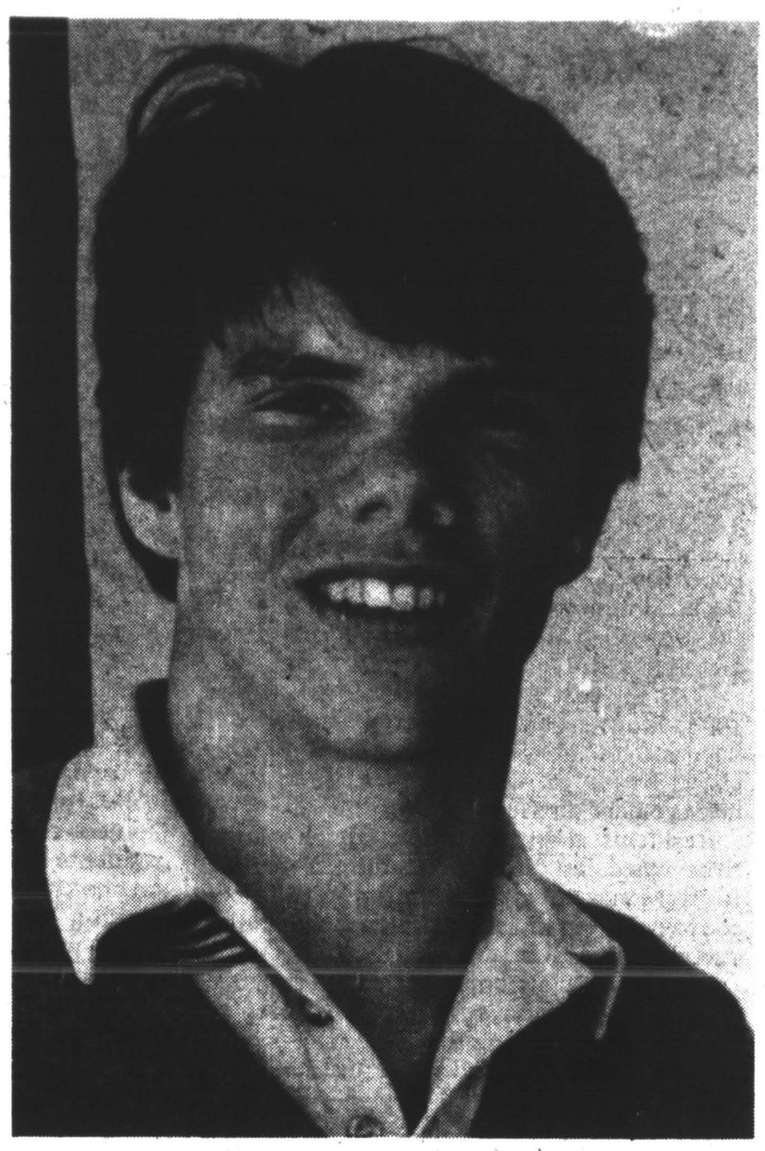

The ceremonies were followed by refreshments and a tour of the department.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded to Perry Bower, Jeff Knepp, Jeff Guzaitis, Annie Sackman, David Woodward, Lisa Radon, Mark Tarmann, Diana Newell, Edgar Haber, Nancy Parsons and Boonie Covell.

Certificates of commendation for police personnel were given to Senior Officer Kenneth O'Donovan, Sergeant Gerald Pullen, Desk Sergeant Joyce Farris, Senior Officer Daniel Clark and Officer Gregory Lindsey.

CHS student of the month

SCOTT SIEGRIST, a senior at Carmel High School, has been chosen by the social studies department as student of the month. Scott is on the league champion Carmel High golf team, and he is active in the American Field Service exchange program. He will go to Switzerland next year through this program. His many interests include drama and he has appeared in the last two Carmel High plays, Blithe Spirit and Witness for the Prosecution. He is an active member of the Model U.N. Club and was a delegate to their convention recently in Berkeley, representing Zaire. Mathematics is Scott's special academic interest. He had the highest score on the Mathematics Association of America test, among Carmel High School students who chose to take it. After Scott returns from Switzerland next year, he plans to go to a University of California school — probably U.C. Davis. He will major in English. He enjoys golfing, snow skiing, and reading for pleasure. After he graduates from college, he hopes to become a novelist.

Water district directors to talk about Boronda assessment district

THE ESTABLISHMENT of an assessment district along the Boronda stretch of the Carmel River is scheduled to be discussed by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors at its May 14 meeting.

The water district board is expected to set a June 4 protest hearing for the proposed assessment district.

The assessment district would finance a coordinated river restoration project along the erosion-prone stretch of the river between the Carmel Valley Little League ballparks and Garland Regional Park.

Over the past few years, about half of the 100 landowners along that stretch of the river have suffered erosion problems, according to Gary Page, an engineer for the water management district.

Residents along the entire stretch of the river voted last year to establish a Carmel River Management Program in an effort to coordinate repair efforts along the entire stretch of the river.

District officials hope to create a subzone along the Boronda stretch of the river to finance projects along that stretch.

Page has recommended the district use a combination of structural devices and vegetation to strengthen the banks of the river and, as a result, the river itself.

He told a meeting of property owners last month that the project would cost about $300,000. The water management district would chip in about $50,000 from money it collects from water consumers in the district.

The district also hopes to receive grant money from the state and federal government to help pay for the project.

But the balance of the cost will have to be paid by residents along the river.

If the board schedules the June 4 hearing, property owners opposed to the project can formally protest the creation of the assessment district.

If more than 50 percent of the homeowners protest the district, the program along the Boronda stretch would die.

But if less than a majority of the homeowners protest, an election of all residents in the proposed district would vote on the creation of the district. A September election is anticipated, according to Bruce Buel, manager of the water management district.

The water management district board meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. May 14 in Monterey City Hall.

'Pan American Day' offered at Briarcliff

BRIARCLIFF ACADEMY students will offer parents and the community an opportunity to learn about the culture, history, politics and food of many Spanish-speaking countries during a "Pan American Day" Thursday, May 17.

The festivities will be celebrated from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. throughout the campus, west side of Dolores Street between First Avenue and Vista Street.

The activities will include oral presentations, exhibits and dances. There also will be a wide variety of foods for sale, including paella, arroz con pollo and chili rellenos. Also available will be the more traditional foods such as tacos, tostadas and desserts.

Funds from the sale of the food will be used to help start a language lab at Briarcliff Academy.

The exhibits will cover a variety of different Spanish-speaking countries, including El Salvador, Honduras, Chile, Spain, Panama, Peru, Argentina, Costa Rica, Mexico, Guatemala and Cuba. The U.S. possession Puerto Rico also is featured.

The students first started work on the project in October when Spanish teacher Gloria McKearney assigned to them a research paper on one of the Spanish-speaking countries.

The students researched the topography, geography, politics, culture, economy, arts and literature, and famous people of the country. The information was obtained from a variety of sources ranging from encyclopedias to travel agents to embassies.

After the reports were completed the students then divided into small groups to prepare their exhibits. The displays then were presented to the entire school during special assemblies.

The public is invited to attend the event. For more information, contact Briarcliff Academy at 624-4815.

Recovery program starts May 14

The next session of the Monterey Peninsula Hospital Recovery Center's new family program will begin Monday, May 14. The program is designed for the family members and loved ones of those with the disease of alcoholism or other chemical dependencies.

The six-day session provides education and coping strategies within a supportive environment, according to Sandra Ivory, program coordinator.

"Where the focus has previously been on the chemically dependent person, our new family program will focus on the family members or loved ones, their needs and behaviors," she said.

The program will assist participants in developing their own personal plans of action and to recover control of their lives, she adds.

"Alcoholism and other chemical dependencies affect the entire family," Ms. Ivory said. "They affect the functioning, the communication, the stability of the family. Until the whole family undergoes treatment, it's difficult for the chemically dependent person to recover, and nearly impossible for recovery to last."

The sessions take place once a month and run Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Recovery Center Education Center, Monterey Peninsula Hospital.

Private physicians or the Recovery Center medical director may provide written referrals for those who desire medical leave of absence from work.

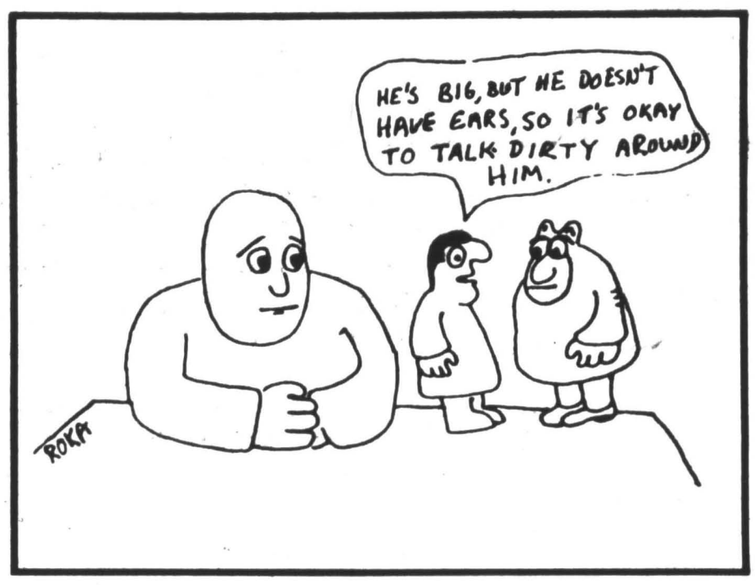

Advance registration is necessary.

For more information, including details about cost of the program and insurance coverage, call the Recovery Center at 373-0924.

TOR HOUSE board member William Miles of Sacramento paused at the foot of Hawk Tower to look over the English country gardens.

Pine Whispers

Tor House garden party successful

From far flung corners of the U.S., people came to Tor House Saturday, drawn by their interest in Robinson Jeffers and his poetry.

More than 100 people attended the third annual Garden Party, where Tor House Foundation President Kenneth Yost and Executive Director Nancy Miller greeted guests from as far away as New York and Texas.

Many of the guests shared their personal reminiscences of meeting Jeffers or of encountering his poetry for the first time. Tor House and Hawk Tower, located near Scenic Drive, were constructed by Jeffers in the early part of this century and their rough strength is often compared to the rough strength of Jeffers' poetry, which brought the Carmel poet world fame by the time he died in 1962.

The property is owned by the Tor House Foundation, affiliated with the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of historic buildings, districts, and maritime resources.

The National Trust has set aside May 13 to 19 as National Historic Preservation Week, when Tor House and the other two California National Trust Properties — Filoli in Woodside and Casa Amesti Adobe in Monterey — will remind people that "Preservation is taking care of America," the theme for this year's special week.

Proceeds from the Garden Party — and from docent-led tours conducted each Friday and Saturday go to help maintain and preserve Tor House.

Chaiperson of the Garden Party was Dorothy Atkinson, assisted by Anne Yost, Fran Boeri, Phyllis Kelley, Sheri Duke, Patricia Porter, and Ann Borden, as well as the Tor House docents and several members of the Tor House Board of Trustees. Music was provided by the Carmelo Consort, Patty Pettit and George Warren.

Information about touring Tor House is available by calling 624-1813.

DELTA GAMMA ALUMNAE

The Delta Gamma Alumnae Association is to meet for a noon luncheon Saturday, May 12 at the home of Barbara McGowan in Pebble Beach.

All Delta Gammas, including new or visiting members, are welcome. Each person is asked to bring books for the May book exchange.

More information is available by contacting Mrs. Eugene Traganza at 373-8722.

ROSE GARDEN TEA

The Fifth Annual Rose Garden Tea, sponsored by the Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, is scheduled from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, May 12.

The garden at the church, located on Carmel Valley Road one mile east of Highway 1, contains more than 125 rose bushes, each of which is labeled and tagged. A plot plan will be provided visitors.

Punch and cookies will be served free of charge, and background music will be provided. For more information, contact the church at 624-8595.

SIERRA CLUB MAYFEST

The Sierra Club will have its annual Mayfest celebration from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, May 20 at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club off Carmel Valley Road.

Included in the celebration will be a wild boar feast and a vegetarian dish; participants should bring their own beverages, plates and utensils.

Reservations may be made by contacting John Broberg, 55 Village Drive, Carmel Valley, or Kris Rahmes at 375-1621.

Reservations must be made by May 12.

SPAULDING/MINK MARRIAGE RITES

Valerie Carol Spaulding of Carmel Valley wed Lee Matthew Mink of Carmel Saturday, May 5 in a 3 p.m. service at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley. The Rev. James Brock officiated.

USING A SILVER tea service donated to the Tor House Foundation by Mrs. Noe Marmolejo of Houston, Tex. was docent Lea Alcott.

The five children of the bride and groom who attended the couple during the ceremony were the bride's son, Tim Spaulding of Carmel Valley, a sophomore at Carmel High School; the groom's four children of Pacific Grove — Jeff, Jennifer, Judy, who are all graduates of Carmel High School, and Jill, who is a senior there.

Valerie is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Card of Palo Alto, and the sister of Benjamin Card of Laguna Beach, who traveled to Carmel Valley with his two children, Ben and Carol, for the wedding.

Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mink of Lakeview, Ark. His parents and sister, Mrs. Robert Wiles of Chicago, were in town for the wedding. Ronald Mink of Carmel is the groom's brother.

A pre-nuptial luncheon was given in the bride's home for the out-of-town relatives and friends of the couple who traveled from Southern California and the San Francisco Bay Area for the ceremony.

The reception was in the Surf Room at the Highlands Inn with Richard Avila's band, The Royals, providing the music. The couple was to honeymoon in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico and will live in Carmel Valley.

Business Beat

Carmel hit by big-city type crime

By FLORENCE MASON

'YESTERDAY, Carmel was hit by big-city type crime. This says that we are going to start to get hit by these people. This guy is good — a pro."

Those were the startling words of Carmel Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras when he addressed a recent meeting of the Carmel Business Association.

Sgt. Poitras' reference was to a man who called himself E. Bernard Anderson, among several other aliases. Anderson arrived in Carmel soon after his release from prison and attempted to obtain credit cards from several local banks.

One alert bank official called the Carmel Police Department. However, Sgt. Poitras did not have enough evidence to detain the man here. "Anderson," who represented himself as an attorney, was subsequently arrested in San Mateo County, partly because a San Mateo deputy contacted Sgt. Poitras for details of the man's activities here. Charges of credit card fraud have been lodged against him, and he now faces a prison term if convicted.

Having gained the attention of the CBA members, Sgt. Poitras then gave statistics about crime, including the impressive fact that in 35 percent of all crimes the victim is a business, and that such crimes contribute substantially to the number of business bankruptcies filed each year in this country. "Small businesses are 35 times more likely to be the victims of crime than larger ones," Sgt. Poitras told his audience, made up largely of small business owners.

One suggestion that came out in the ensuing discussion is that since it is necessary to prove intent to defraud a business with a bad check, every effort should be made by businesses' employees to get more information when they accept a check.

"Call the police department if you have a funny feeling about someone," Sgt. Poitras urged. "Don't try to rationalize that feeling away." He added that the store owner or clerk should write down a physical description, and always check the appearance of the person with the picture on his driver's license.

"Out-of-state checks? Be prepared to eat them!" Sgt. Poitras said. He added that extradition is expensive and bank records — again, to prove intent — are hard to get.

A member of the group described his sytem for obtaining information through the use of a specially prepared stamp to be filled out for each customer who presents a check, and several spoke for the use of credit verification services, which are now computer-based to provide quick information.

Sgt. Poitras summarized the discussion: "Don't worry too much about inconveniencing your customers." He also urged the CBA members to call the police department and not to touch anything if they should arrive at a business to find it has been entered by a burglar.

"If there isn't a witness, fingerprints are one way we have of proving that a suspect is guilty," Poitras said.

A discussion about shoplifting also elicited some suggestions and this pointed comment by one woman who owns a local business: "I used to be a nice, naive, sweet person, but I'm getting nasty!"

She described an attempt to return stolen goods for cash. She accepted the goods and invited the suspect to go to the police department to complain if he didn't like the fact that she wasn't going to pay him for them. He left.

"I LOVE SHOES"

"We're middle of the road," Pat Rowedder said. And then she added: "That can be exciting!"

She referred to the new shoe store she and husband Dennis have opened at the corner of Monte Verde Street and Ocean Avenue (where Michele's had been). What is exciting to Pat Rowedder about shoes is that bright colors are coming back to these essential articles of clothing.

"I love shoes, to begin with," she said. The Rowedders' emphasis is on shoes for business people — "not necessarily for the younger group, and not the most expensive."

In addition to shoes, the attractive shop offers handbags, costume jewelry and hats.

The couple came to Carmel 26 years ago. After more than seven years, they went to live in the San Francisco area while Dennis worked for local televisions stations. In Carmel "off and on," they operated The Sticky Wicket on Ocean Avenue for three years and are now happily ensconced in this new location.

The couple has two sons. One lives in Sausalito and one attends U.C. Davis. When they can find the time for it, they enjoy sailing.

ENTICING RIDERS

Local business owners, especially members of the Carmel Business Association, are putting forth a great deal of effort and some interesting enticements to encourage their employees and Carmel shoppers to use the new Pacific Grove/Carmel bus. The hourly trip, which takes about 15 minutes each way, was established recently and will continue for about six months as a test run. Whether it will be continued or not will largely depend upon rider usage.

Maggie Hays, manager of Carmel Plaza, told members of the business association "it's an advantage to everyone, including those who live in Pacific Grove and work in our businesses in Carmel. It takes cars off the street."

As the Plaza's incentive for riding the bus, anyone who rides to Carmel and purchases at least $5 worth of merchandise in the Plaza will be given a free bus ticket for the return trip. "In addition, three lucky people who commute for a month and then call me will receive their fares for a second month," she said.

Another plan sponsored by the Plaza is to have "a phantom traveler" who will hand out $20 gift certificates for Plaza stores to bus riders, at random. "The buses are great, and their drivers are nice," Mrs. Hays said.

SHOP IN THE GARDEN (MORE)

I had a chance to talk to Milt Williams about his shop and his family after the April 26 meeting of Carmel's business license board. The Williamses had just learned that they would not have to go through the use permit process in order to expand their 25-year-old business.

Their plans even earned this comment from Sandy Swain, chairwoman of the Carmel Planning Commission: "You have one of the most attractive and unique shops in Carmel. I'm glad you are going for it."

A main purpose of the shop's expansion into the adjacent area is to provide space in which to display the work of their son, Steve. "We're going to call it Carmel Pottery, even though Steve lives and works in Oregon now," Milt Williams said.

Steve worked in his parents' shop for about 10 years, through his school days, and gradually put more and more time into the development of his own products — especially wall hangings and lamps. Now he is a potter in Sun River, Ore. and he and his wife have given Milt and Flo Williams three grandsons.

Sons Nick and Milton Jr. also worked with their parents for some time. Nick — the oldest — teaches, has a music group and operates Foghorn Music in Pacific Grove. Flo Williams chimed in with pride: "At 16, he was the youngest member of the music union in Monterey!" Milton Jr. is an art director in Berkeley and he and his wife have a little girl.

Flo Williams, after 30 years as housewife and mother, "is doing lots of things for the shop, too," her husband said. Among the products of her talents are copper fish to hang on walls, and lamps. Around the expanding garden shop there are also various forms of pottery, metal sculpture, fountains and other garden accessories.

Until the grandchildren are old enough to help out, the Williamses have non-related assistants, including Mike Largent, who has been with them 15 years, and Steve Johnson. The shop in the Garden and its new Galleria are in Wayfarer Place, on Lincoln south of Ocean Avenue.

JOHN LIVINGSTONE'S LATEST

Enterprising photographer/author/teacher John Livingstone loves Carmel. His latest innovation reflects this, even in its title: Love Carmel Photo Walks.

Livingstone invites photograph "students" of any age to join him for four hours "of leisurely fun photographing Carmel's many charms." The class — if it could be called that — is organized for any weekday morning from 8:30 a.m. to 12 p.m., with a follow-up session the same afternoon from 2 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. The latter is for the purpose of critiquing and commenting by Livingstone on the photographs taken in Carmel's business and residential districts.

The fee for the walk and critique includes a "get-acquainted breakfast" at Myron's Elephant, and the afternoon half-hour meeting will also convene at the new restaurant on Sixth Avenue. Livingstone assures us that the walking pace will be leisurely, with plenty of time to discuss and demonstrate lighting, composition and other aspects of photography at each stop. "Reservations are recommended, but not required," he added.

THIS — AND ALSO THAT

Michael Monroe was happy to learn that his new real estate office at San Carlos Street and Eighth Avenue — Century 21 -Red, White and Blue — does not need to obtain a use permit. His plans for use of that corner office were quickly approved when the business license board received the city attorney's opinion.

It's a return to Carmel for Monroe, who had a real estate office here from 1979-1981.

Tim Mallery, owner of Dolores Lodge (Dolores north of Fourth Avenue) would like to add two rental units to the existing motel. The business license board decided to pass the buck on that one, and referred it to the city council. "It's a policy matter," City Administrator Doug Schmitz said.

William Sieberts, who wants very much "to be a permanent part of the community," is ready to build a home in Carmel. And he just acquired an office.

"Sieberts Consultant" is sharing space with the new Century 21-Red, White and Blue Realty office at San Carlos Street and Eighth Avenue. Siebert said he works "internationally, as a marketing and design consultant." He also told the business license board that since 1950 he has had "the benefit of Kipp Stewart's design talents."

THE PROPOSED Sunset Center parking garage was one of the city projects discussed by the council in a special session Saturday, May 5. Above, a city public works employee helped repair the retaining wall on the vacant lot at Sunset Center. (Photo by Michael Gardner.)

According to engineer

Sunset Center restoration would cost some $200,000

RESTORATION of Sunset Center to comply with existing building codes would cost more than $200,000, according to a field survey conducted by a Monterey engineer.

The most serious code violations at the center, according to the report, are those related to the "deteriorating" electrical system.

The cost of replacing the system would be more than $100,000.

In addition, the cost of structural repairs and additions to the city-owned building, which is the scene of many cultural performances and shows, exceeds $100,000, according to the report issued last week by Frank Lee.

A survey of the electrical system by Paul Peterson, an electrical engineer for Fehr Engineering Co., "revealed a number of code violations in addition to the fact that the electrical distribution system is very old and in deteriorating condition.

"It is recommended that the two existing electrical services to the building be replaced with a single new service of larger capacity."

Much of the rest of the recommended improvements to the facility include the installation of doors and door frames that will comply with fire code requirements. Replacement of doors would cost $20,000.

In addition, the report recommends that the facility be fumigated for termites at a cost of $19,000.

The report, which cost about $26,000 to produce, was the result of concern expressed last year by Carmel Community and Cultural Commission officials. They said Sunset Center needs extensive structural repair but that cultural commission budget restraints prohibit authorization of the work.

The Carmel City Council, after budget hearings last year, agreed to spend the money on the field survey.

The city council is expected to consider the Sunset Center report when it decides how to spend its capital budget as it reviews the proposed 1984-85 city budget later this summer, according to Greg D'Ambrosio, assistant administrator.

D'Ambrosio said he doubts the city would spend all the money required to fix Sunset in the first year.

Apparently the most pressing item in need of replacement is the main electrical switch.

According to Peterson's report, the main switchboard and most of the feeder breakers "are in excess of 50 years old. In view of the deterioration observed, the time for replacement is long past. It's doubtful that many of the feeder breakers will perform their protective function when necessary."

As a result, he said, "the main switchboard should be replaced as soon as is practical."

Peterson also suggested city maintenance crews maintain accurate records of any alteration or repairs to the electrical system.

"Not having good records at hand often turns a simple task into a monumental project," he said. "The lack of available useful electrical plans necessitated many man-hours of surveying panel, feeder and equipment locations. It was also discovered that many panel directories were incorrect and that most of the feeder breakers were mislabeled.

Private graveside services took place April 27 at Cypress Lawn Memorial Park in Colma for Edith E. Pearson, a Pebble Beach resident for the past 20 years who died April 24 at Community Hospital. She was 88.

Born May 6, 1895 in Belmont, she moved to the peninsula from Palo Alto where she lived for more than 30 years.

She was a former member of the Palo Alto Woman's Club and the Carmel Woman's Club. Survivors include her daughter, Virginia Davis of Pebble Beach; and a granddaughter, Beth Gilmore of Campbell. Her husband, Floyd, died in 1978.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Community Hospital or the donor's favorite charity.

Aidan Roark

Private memorial services took place in San Francisco for former Pebble Beach resident, Aidan Roark, a widely-known international polo player, who died March 31 at Dominican Hospital in Santa Cruz. He was 78.

Born Oct. 23, 1905 in Carlow, Ireland, he lived on the peninsula from the 1920s to the 1940s, later in Carmel Valley, and most recently in Watsonville.

He was director of story editors at 20th Century Fox in Hollywood, and later was an administrator for the state for 20 years. He served in the Army during World War II.

He raised champion English springer spaniels, and raised and sold thoroughbred horses for many years, and was an official at racing tracks across the country, retiring in 1977.

He played international high goal polo and was a member of English, Irish and American teams. He was a charter member and past president of the Society of North American Racing Officials and other horse and dog organizations.

He is survived by his wife, Dee, of Watsonville. He was previously married to former tennis star Helen Hills Moody of Carmel Valley.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Central Mission Trails Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Dog license renewal date

Annual city and county dog licenses expired April 30 and must be renewed before May 31 to avoid payment of a penalty fee.

A valid rabies vaccination certificate is required to obtain a license. Dogs vaccinated before April 1, 1983 will require a new rabies vaccination this year.

Persons who live in unincorporated areas of Monterey County may obtain a dog license from the health department or the SPCA, 1001 Monterey/Salinas Highway.

Persons who live in the incorporated cities of Monterey, Marina, Carmel, Gonzales, Soledad, Pacific Grove, Sand City, Greenfield, Seaside or Del Rey Oaks must obtain a dog license from their city hall.

Late penalties range from $3 to $15, depending on the city or unincorporated area.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Older people who live alone will soon find that help can be as near as their mailboxes. Under the U.S. Postal Service's new nationwide Carrier Alert program, the mailboxes of elderly and homebound patrons can be checked for accumulataions of mail that might indicate sudden illness or accident. When carriers notice that mail has not been retrieved for two days from boxes marked with special stickers, they will notify their supervisors who, in turn, will call a local sponsoring agency responsible for contacting a relative or other person.

BROADWAY CARPET

SUNDAY 10-5 MON-SAT 8-6 1049 BROADWAY, BEAUTIFUL SEASIDE 394-6831

An afternoon of 'Good Vibrations'

AL JARDINE, bass guitarist with the Beach Boys and Big Sur resident, said he was awed by the "natural disorder" of the Big Sur slide that virtually sealed off his ranch. (Photograph by Susi Platzer.)

Legendary Beach Boys to bring the surfing sound to Laguna Seca

By ANNE PAPINEAU

HE IS THE elfin-faced Beach Boy, a dominant voice heard in the classic Help Me Rhonda, the rhythm guitar and bass player who supplies those melodic chords in 35 albums that personify a time, a place, a generation.

And for 11 years now, Al Jardine has called Big Sur home.

"I wouldn't mind doing something with the group down there — there are so many programs we could do for the coast, restoring the beach...a concert for a cause."

The group he speaks of are the remaining voices of the longest-running original member rock group in music history. The Beach Boys brought sunshine to rock and roll, sprouted song hits like sand fleas and created a California image of surfers and beach bunnies so pervasive that some easterners still seem to believe all Californians surf.

"The music is timeless and youthful," said Jardine, attired in an orchid-printed shirt and light-colored trousers. "But it's kind of hard to find a place in the ocean to surf. There are elbow-to-elbow surfers. Up here there are still some pretty good places. I talked to some Carmel surfers — the waves around 15th and 16th are pretty good."

Jardine was pressed into service to discuss the Beach Boys' appearance at Sun, Sound and Seca. The day of entertainment, slated for Saturday, May 12 at the Laguna Seca Recreation Area, will be highlighted by an afternoon concert by the Beach Boys. It marks the third appearance of the 24-year-old group in this area.

To Al Jardine, however, the Monterey Peninsula — specifically Big Sur — is the place he selected 11 years ago to help "recycle my biology."

Gently tanned and trim, Jardine, 41, exudes the peace of mind that often seemed to evade fellow band members Brian and the late Dennis Wilson. His wife of seven weeks, Mary Ann, 27, accompanied him to the press conference in a pink jogging suit.

"It gets wearisome sometimes," Jardine admitted when asked of the rigors of touring. "The music always energizes you once you get going. I suppose it's kind of like the boxer who has a 20-year career. But I don't have any brain damage yet. I might have a little ear damage."

HOME IS one of the old Pfeiffer cottages and a redwood barn turned recreation room situated on 70 acres in Sycamore Canyon.

"We're very near the beach. We have a lot of sun, some pastures, a horse, a dog and hope to have some other animals soon," Mary Ann said.

"We have an apartment in Scottsdale, (Ariz.) also," she added. "He came up to Big Sur to avoid the problems and confusion of L.A."

"I'm kind of the group's historian when it comes to early rock music and fusion," Jardine said. His Big Sur home contains a small recording studio, a piano and jukeboxes where he can listen to old-time rock and roll.

Much of the year, however, the Beach Boys tour around the world.

"When we get together in concert we rehearse a week and then begin a fresh tour," Jardine said.

The Beach Boys observed a short "period of silence" following Dennis Wilson's Dec. 27 drowning.

"I thought it would be appropriate to postpone concerts the beginning of the year," he explained. "We decided to re-book some of those dates in March. We kind of lost our momentum for a while. We're so used

'Pied Piper of the clarinet' opens the music society season

RICHARD Stoltzman, the musician Time recently called the "pied piper of the clarinet," will open the 1984-85 season of the Carmel Music Society with a solo performance on Friday, Oct. 26.

Season tickets are now available for the 58th season. Highlights of the upcoming series include the Empire Brass Quintet on Tuesday, Nov. 27; operatic baritone Hakan Hagegard on Friday, Jan. 18, 1985; pianist Babette Hierholzer on Friday, Feb. 15 and violinist Mia Kim on Saturday, March 9.

Richard Stoltzman, the 41-year-old winner of the Avery Fisher Prize, already has achieved the prominence of an internationally acclaimed musician. He makes his instrument the means to communicate with warmth and immediacy.

The Empire Brass Quintet is a chamber ensemble first encouraged by Leonard Bernstein at Tanglewood in 1972. Since that time it has toured world-wide and was the first brass ensemble to receive the Naumberg Chamber Music Award. It performed for the 90th anniversary of Carnegie Hall and has made more than 20 recordings.

Swedish baritone Hakan Hagegard will be remembered for his role as Papageno in Ingmar Bergman's film version of The Magic Flute. He is considered one of the world's finest lieder singers and has been a principal member of the Stockholm Royal Opera since 1968. His repertoire ranges from Mozart's arias to Mahler's songs and the contemporary works of Dallapiccola and Ligeti.

The young German pianist Babette Hierholzer will make her first appearance in the United States. She is already well known in Europe, where she is a regular solo recitalist with the Salzburg Festival. Since making her debut at age 11 in the Philharmonic Hall of Berlin, she has won seven first prizes in the Steinway Competition and two first prizes in the National German Piano Contest. Critics have praised her technique, balance of sound and attention to detail.

Mia Kim, the 23-year-old Korean-born violinist who was the grand prize winner of the Young California Artist Competition sponsored by the Carmel Music Society this year, will close the season with a solo recital.

Season tickets may be ordered by calling the Carmel Music Society, 372-1226. Prices are $28, $32 and $36.

Top dogs parade for SPCA benefit in Pebble Beach

THE CLASSIC of the Pacific, a pointed all-breed dog show and obedience trial, will be presented by the Del Monte Kennel Club 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, May 12.

Location is the front lawn of the Lodge at Pebble Beach. A portion of the proceeds from this show will be donated to the Monterey County SPCA.

Betty White will serve as mistress of ceremonies for the Del Monte Kennel Club weekend. Her activities will include presentation of the best-in-show trophy and ribbons Saturday afternoon.

A special feature of the event is the obedience classes which begin at 9 a.m. Nearly 500 "champions only" will compete in this, the 59th annual Del Monte Kennel Club Show.

The Doberman Drill Team, under the direction of Rosalie Alvarez and Tom Simpson of Los Altos Hills, will go through their maneuvers at noon.

Cash awards this year will be $500 for best in show, $100 to first in each group and $50 to second in each group, $25 for third and fourth place in each group.

A Ring 13 Gala After-Show Dinner Dance will take place at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lodge. The black tie affair is open to exhibitors, members, judges and guests.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12. Advance tickets are available at Suds and Scissors, 624-4697; Total Dog, 624-5553 and the SPCA on the Monterey-Salinas Highway, 373-2631.

Seca lineup for May 12

A CONCERT lineup that includes The Beach Boys, Eddie and the Tide and the Greg Kihn Band are just part of the action at Sun, Sound and Seca, an all-day entertainment event Saturday, May 12 at the Laguna Seca Recreation Area.

The natural bowl setting within the recreation complex will be put to use for the day of music, car shows and other activities.

Gates open at 8 a.m. at Laguna Seca. Scheduled morning events are a display of 60 prize-winning classic cars from the '60s, plus demonstrations of hanggliding, skateboarding and surfing. More than 30 food booths will be open at the concert site. An assortment of catamarans and ultralight aircraft will be displayed.

The music is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. A battle of local bands is included on the musical bill.

Tickets to the concert are $12.50 in advance and $15 at the gate. Tickets are available at BASS and Ticketron outlets, San Jose Box Office and Sherwood Box Office, Salinas. For ticket information, call 649-4289, 649-3468, 758-7477, or 424-6422.

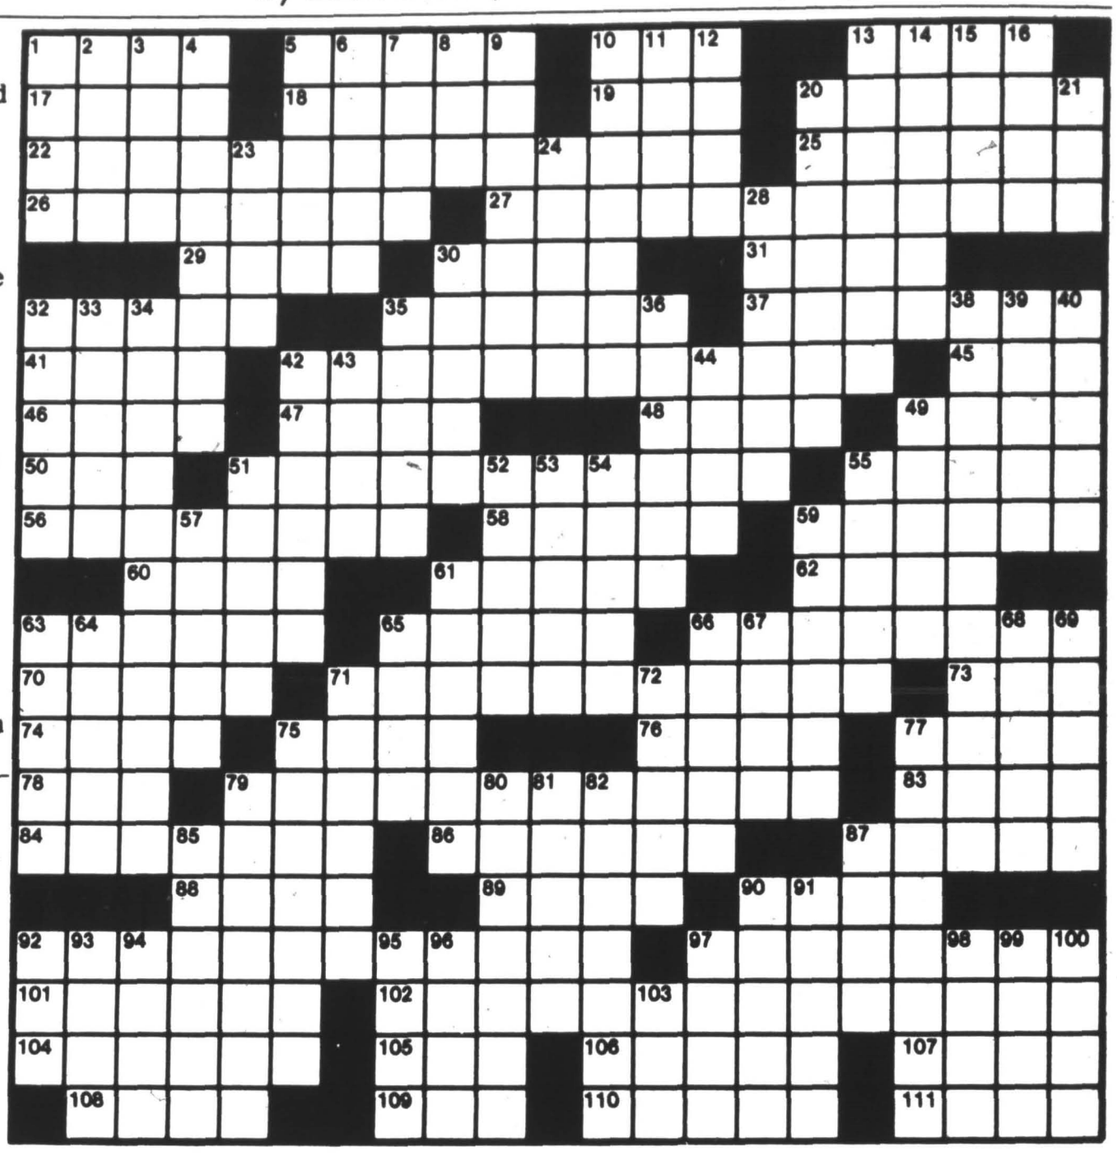

Break dancing in Carmel?

Goldberg to present concert for Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art

LAURETTE GOLDBERG, founder of the Philharmonia Baroque Orchestra of the West, will perform selections by Mozart, Haydn and Schumann from 3 p.m. to 4:40 p.m. Sunday, May 13, in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Admission is $4 for members and $4.50 for non-members.

Accompanying Ms. Goldberg in her premiere performance on a newly reconstructed fortepiano will be tenor Harlan Hoken, a member of the Stanford University faculty.

Ms. Goldberg, a harpsichord instructor at UC Berkeley, has performed extensively in Europe, Israel and the United States. She currently directs the baroque program at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and is music director of Tapestry, formerly the Elizabethan Trio.

She recently created a series of concerts in conjunction with the Vatican Exhibition in San Francisco. The concert has been scheduled in conjunction with the exhibition of landscapes by 19th-Century painter William Keith now up at the museum.

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is at 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

John Pisto, Owner

John Pisto's delight - the food the food experts praise ...

Owner John Pisto still enjoys donning chef's garb for a bit of creative cookery. With John and his chefs, humdrum cooking is out. Imaginative cooking is in. They use only choice regional produce. Fresh fish and savory meats are prepared on the open-pit, mesquite wood broiler. An extensive California wine list tops off a superb dining experience.

CERAMICS by Emily Rossheim will be exhibited through June 10 at Handworks, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. For more information, call 624-8198.

Ceramic bags featured at Handworks' display

RECENT WORKS by ceramic artist Emily Rossheim will be on exhibit through June 10 at Handworks in Carmel.

Ms. Rossheim, established as a professional craftsperson since 1977, has produced exclusively for Handworks new floral designs of native California wildflowers. The designs decorate her ceramic tiles, bag vases and sculptural forms.

Emily's technique begins with the mixing of pigments into the clay body. She applies pieces of colored clay to the surface of slab forms, and makes graphic decorations, generally representational in motif.

Ms. Rossheim presently works in a private studio in New York. In 1974 and 1975 she participated in a work study program at the University of Vermont under the direction of Hideo Okino, a protegee of Tohisko Takaezu.

From 1975 to 1980 Ms. Rossheim shared an independent studio in Vermont where she began to market her work locally and nationally.

Other galleries where she has shown her work include The Clay Pot, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Del Mano Gallery, Los Angeles and the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

Handworks is on Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues, next door to the Tuck Box, Carmel. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sunday. The telephone number is 624-8198.

GALLERY NEW WORLD

Hanson Galleries present works by Hisashi Otsuka

TO CELEBRATE the release of a new group of works by Hisashi Otsuka, Hanson Galleries of Carmel will sponsor a reception for the artist 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 13. The gallery is on Ocean Avenue at San Carlos.

Otsuka's philosophy of art is to retrace the inspiration of the old masters and to make that inspiration come alive again. Through his art Hisashi Otsuka has met the challenge of his ancestors by capturing and clarifying the Japanese visions of life in its richness, delicacies and complexity of pattern.

For more information about this exhibit, call Hanson Galleries, 625-3111.

Mamet Double Bill

David Mamet's dramas The Water Engine and Mr. Happiness open this weekend for a four-week run at The Cherry Foundation.

Mamet's scripts were originally produced on the national public radio program Ear Play. Both have been adapted for the stage.

The production is directed by Carey Crockett, co-producer of Break A Leg!, a local theater program on radio station KAZU, 90.3 FM.

The Water Engine and Mr. Happiness are produced by Unicorn Theatre Presents in association with the Carl Cherry Foundation. The dramas will run at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 11-12.

The Cherry Foundation is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel. Tickets are $5 general and $3.50 for students and seniors. For reservations, call 624-7491.

The Odd Couple

On Friday, May 11, The Wharf Theater will open Neil Simon's comedy, The Odd Couple. Directed by Harrison Shields, this classic of the modern theater will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights through July 1.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 8 p.m. Sundays. Ticket prices are $6 and $8. Reservations can be made by calling 372-2882.

A Moon for the Misbegotten

A Moon for the Misbegotten, one of Eugene O'Neill's most poignant plays, is staged at the California Repertory Theatre under the direction of Edward Weingold. Weingold returns to Cal Rep having directed Talley's Folly in its inaugural season and is currently director of studies at the Drama Studio London at Berkeley.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 12-13. Ticket prices run from $9 to $13.

The California Repertory Theatre is at 125 Ocean View Blvd., in the American Tin Cannery Building, Pacific Grove. For more information, call 372-0750 or 372-4373.

The Sunshine Boys

The Studio Theatre Restaurant production of Neil Simon's The Sunshine Boys continues this weekend.

Neil Simon's bickering vaudeville duo of Lewis and Clark are portrayed by none other than an ex-vaudevillian and a former Carmel mayor. Jimmy Durante's godchild completes the casting coup. Some rough edges need smoothing, but the play generates laughter in both expected and unexpected places.

The Sunshine Boys runs Thursdays through Sundays until May 19. Dinner is served at 7 p.m. and curtain time is 8:30 p.m., with an hour earlier schedule for Sundays. Admission for dinner and show is $22.50. The Studio Theatre Restaurant is on Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues, Carmel. For reservations, call 624-1661.

Bullshot Crummond

California Repertory Theatre opens its second season with the hit comedy Bullshot Crummond. This hilarious parody of the low-budget grade "B" detective movies of the '30s was written collectively by Ron House, Diz White, Alan Shearman, John Neville-Andrews and Derek Cunningham. Directed by the accomplished stage and screen actor Cab Covay (no stranger to the play, he starred as the lead in the original production at the Hippodrome in San Francisco), this fast-paced production is a modern Commedia Dell'Arte piece, making fun of archetypal characters well known to today's audiences.

Veteran Bay Area actor Randy Haege stars as the British officer Bullshot Crummond who fought in the trenches of France, laughs at danger and doesn't know the meaning of fear. Crummond is totally confident in anything he attempts but his shortcomings are quite obvious to the audience. Randy comes to Monterey from The Western Stage where he starred for two seasons in various leading roles.

Co-starring in the role of the genteel English lady, Miss Rosemary Fenton, is Karen Lamb. She joins Cal Rep after working in Off Broadway productions and, most recently, with the Mountain Playhouse in Pennsylvania. Other cast members include Bay Area Theatre Critics Circle Award winner Dana Kelly as Algy Longwort, actor/director Jarion Monroe as Otto Von Brunno and veteran actress and opera singer Kate Rowland as Lenya Von Brunno.

Bullshot Crummond will play through June 17. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 10, 11, 15, 16. A 2 p.m. matinee is scheduled Saturday, May 12 and Wednesday, May 16.

A Daughter of the Desert

Mayhem, murder and suspense distinguish A Daughter of the Desert, which plays at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at California's First Theatre, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens and $3 for sub-teens. For reservations, call 375-4916 after 1 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays.

What's playing at the movies

Against All Odds: It's a remake of the 1947 film, Out of the Past. Set in Los Angeles and Mexico, this gangster tale pits an ex-football player (Jeff Bridges) against a nightclub owner (James Woods) for the love of Rachel (Thorn Birds) Ward. Directed by Taylor Hackford. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

Alphabet City: Vincent Spano stars in a dusk-to-dawn look at drug dealing in Manhattan. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

The Big Chill: A group of seven old friends reunite for the funeral of Alex, one of their pals, who has committed suicide. Chilled by this intimation of their own mortality, each begins to question his or her life. With Kevin Kline, Glenn Close, Tom Berenger, Jeff Goldblum and William Hurt. Rated R. At the Golden Bough. 624-4044.

The Bounty: Another attempt to tell the "true story" of that naval personality clash. Stars Mel Gibson, Anthony Hopkins, Edward Fox and Laurence Olivier as Admiral Hood. Rated PG. At Cinema 70. 373-4777.

Breakin': Recommended for dance maniacs. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Firestarter: Charlie McGee is a happy, healthy eight-year-old little girl. She's normal in every way but one: she has the power to set objects afire with just one glance. Another lulu from Stephen King. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

Footloose: A Chicago high school student transfers to a rural high school and discovers music and manners are different in the sticks. With Kevin Bacon and John Lithgow. Directed by Herbert Ross (The Turning Point). Rated PG. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan, Lord of the Apes: The last word in Tarzanian theory. Directed by Hugh (Chariots of Fire) Hudson, this version is truer to the Burroughs books. Rated PG. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Hard Bodies: More beach-bound T and A. Rated R. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

Hotel New Hampshire: Nastassja Kinsky as Susie the lesbian bear is but one of the offbeat casting choices in this hilarious adaptation of a best seller. Death, anarchy and blindness are but some of the woes that beset the characters, ably played by Jodie Foster, Beau Bridges and Rob Lowe. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

This is Spinal Tap: Directed by Rob Reiner, the film satirizes the rock and roll scene in a comedy about an English heavy metal band on its comeback tour. Rated R. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Adams memorial exhibit continues

The memorial exhibition of Ansel Adams' photographs selected by Virginia Adams, his wife of 56 years, will have extended hours Friday, May 11.

The exhibit will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at The Friends of Photography Gallery, located in Sunset Center, San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue, Carmel. It will also be open 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 12-13. Admission is free.

Monotype workshop offered in PG

Susan Dorf, a member of the Peninsula Printmakers Cooperative, will offer a one-day monotype workshop from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 3.

The workshop will take place in Studio 14 at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. Cost is $20 for co-op members and $25 for non-members. Registration and fee are due by Monday, May 14.

Monotype printmaking is a process of direct painting or image transfer onto printmaking plates which are then passed through a press to produce one-of-a-kind images. For further information, call Susan Dorf, 375-2152.

Special celebration

The 'sardine days' will return to Cannery Row

THE lively "sardine years" of Cannery Row will be paid tribute during the annual Great Cannery Row Reunion, with events scheduled May 14-19 in the former canneries and bawdyhouses that make up this Monterey waterfront landmark.

The reunion is a celebration of the role of the "Cannery Row Alumni," former cannery workers, fishermen and residents who made up the colorful community chronicled in John Steinbeck's writings. It is sponsored by the Cannery Row Foundation, a nonprofit group dedicated to preserving the historic and nostalgic heritage of Cannery Row.

The event will be kicked off with a Monday, May 14 birthday party in honor of Steinbeck's friend and mentor, marine biologist Ed (Doc) Ricketts. Ricketts, born May 14, 1897, was the Nobel Prize-winning author's friend for 18 years. He was killed a few days before his 50th birthday when struck by the evening Del Monte Express on Cannery Row in 1948.

Ricketts' birthday party will be a two-fold celebration. From 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday dramatic interpretations from Steinbeck's Cannery Row will be presented by members of the California Repertory Theatre at the theatre, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Musical entertainment will be supplied by local performers. A $2 donation will be requested.

After Cannery Row, Ricketts' birthday party will continue from 9 p.m. at Kalisa's La Ida Cafe, 851 Cannery Row. Kalisa's is the site of one of the three original bordellos on Cannery Row.

According to Michael Hemp, executive director of the Cannery Row Foundation: "John Steinbeck didn't write a great deal about the canning business, and even less about the fishing industry. But he did immortalize Cannery Row and his best friend and mentor, Ed Ricketts."

Reunion events continue with a Friday, May 18 "Cannery Dance" at The Mark Thomas Outrigger. Music will be provided by Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers during the 8 p.m. to midnight dance. Donations of $5 per person will benefit the Cannery Row Foundation.

Saturday, May 19, the Cannery Row Memorial Park will be dedicated at 11 a.m. The park is at Wave and Irving streets.

According to Hemp, the Cannery Row Foundation seeks to preserve the true history of Cannery Row. Its projects include recording the oral histories of the people who lived and worked on the Row during the "sardine years" that ended decades ago.

"The cannery era ended in the late '40s," Hemp said. "The youngsters among the alumni are now in their 60s. The more mature are in their 90s."

He pointed out that because of the advanced age of many of the persons involved, "the next five years will be a race against time to get their oral histories. We're trying to write the human history of Cannery Row — the shifts, the hours, the conditions, and bracket it against the war, prohibition, depression."

For additional information about the work of the Cannery Row Foundation or Reunion events, call 375-3882.

Fitting farewell to Taeuber

By SCOTT MACCLELLAND

THE ONLY fanfare for Haymo Taeuber's last program as the Monterey County Symphony's full-time conductor was the splendid performance itself. The orchestra, if no one else, seemed to sense the significance of the occasion and rose to it as one person in the King Hall performance Sunday night.

In a sense, the thoroughly polished reading of the Mussorgsky/Ravel Pictures at an Exhibition reflected better than any words the Taeuber legacy. The work is a veritable concerto for orchestra and the instrumental choirs as well as individual players under Taeuber's baton displayed a polished musicality and ensemble authority that would have pleased all but the hardest hearts, and not a few symphony boards of directors up and down California.

The orchestral images of the many different pictures also suggested the 16-year marriage of Maestro Taeuber and the Monterey musicians, with moments of joy, like the Ballet of the Unhatched Chicks and moments of sadness, like the bittersweet and beautifully played Old Castle.

The Tuileries sounded like strange, old children, all pretty, proper and a little sad. Bydlo, the ox cart, rolled awesomely like a Star Wars battle machine, and the Hut on Fowl's Legs swayed ponderously as if it were a child's nightmare instead of an amusing Russian fairy tale.

The program opened with no less impact and importance as Taeuber drew the grand, humanistic sweep from Wagner's Meistersinger Prelude. From the start, the orchestra was primed for the event and even the rare loose end fell quickly and inexorably into place.

Perhaps it was the singleness of purpose called for by the occasion, but the orchestra gave one its finest concerto accompaniments ever to violinist Ruggiero Ricci in the Bruch Concerto in G Minor. And, in further irony, Taeuber and his players were in better stride than the soloist, whose fiery playing and driving tone only warmed up as the performance unfolded.

But a true performance was achieved, with a gracious slow movement and a blustering finale, followed by two encores, a slightly unsteady Paganini caprice, and a commanding Recitatno and Scherzo by Kreisler.

There remain three as yet unspoken-for programs of the next Monterey County Symphony season, and one should be a Taeuber valedictory. The maestro will conduct a pops concert at the Naval Postgraduate School at 2 p.m. May 20.

THE PERSONALITY of violinist Uto Ughi, in his concert for the Carmel Music Society last week, exuded as much mystique as musical art, aroused the audience with compelling expression and musicianship, and teased it with subtle nonsequitors, understatements and affectations that at once intensified the performance and robbed it of complete persuasion.

The opening Mozart Sonata in B flat, K. 454 was richly intoned but properly rather than searchingly expressed. Of course, Mozart offers more than two colors, but Ughi treated his palette of oils with watercolor technique.

The early movements of Bach's Partita in D Minor, and Ughi's hands, converged on the psalmic chaconne with a lightness borne of impatience. Only the gigue, just ahead of the chaconne, gave a hint of the edifice to come, and Ughi set it to virtuosic whirling. If the chaconne itself lacked anything in this performance it was the appearance that these exalted variations fall into three main sections, the outer two supporting a fairly cosmic, architectonic dome.

Ughi chose instead to build a sequence of smaller, individual arches, and to enrich them with steady and splendid tone from his Stradivarius instrument. In addition, he brought a deeper, more deliberately personal, though no less mysterious intensity to his playing.

For the Suite populaire espagnole by Falla, Ughi showed the most colorful palette of the evening, and fired it with swaggering abandon, especially in the polo. In this lightest (if not easiest) music of all, Ughi was at his most open moment with none of the aloofness that formalized his other efforts.

The Brahms Sonata in D Minor gathered the violinist's now fully warmed persona together with the serious romanticism of the composer's late years and, save for some occasional distancing, brought the evening to a substantially satisfying, and certainly impressive completion. The encore, Sarasate's Carmen Fantasy, was exciting but, in terms of the rest of the program, carelessly played. Janet Guggenheim gave solid accompaniment to the violinist but would have done the evening no harm by taking a bolder and more equalized part.

A BOSTON blitz swept the annual Ensemble Awards Competition of the Chamber Music Society over the weekend. Of eight competing ensembles, three of the winners were comprised of wind and brass players from the New England Conservatory and Boston University.

Between them, and with the inclusion of three youngsters (ages 14, 15 and 17) from the San Francisco Conservatory, the competition set new standards of excellence that we hope will continue. Of course such standards must also reflect the level of prizes, and the effort to raise the $6,500 awarded in Sunday's prize concert has to be fairly monumental.

The level of quality, both interpretively and technically, was virtually professional for the first-prize winning Boston University Honors Woodwinds, and scarcely less for the New England Conservatory Honors Woodwinds. The other first prize winners were the August Trio from the S.F. Conservatory, and these extraordinary teens made easy work of the difficult Dvorak "Dumky" Trio.

Dance demonstration offered

Bay Day fun!

LAGUNA SECA it wasn't but that didn't bother young Tim Hare of Carmel, who easily made this turn to win his big wheel race on the brand new speedway at Bay School. The races were all part of the fun during the annual Bay Day festivities May 5 at the small pre-school.

MEGAN DEBRITO patiently held still as the artful brush painted her face during Bay Day festivities.

WHOA NELLIE! Katie Holden of Big Sur was one of the many children to enjoy the pony ride led by Aileen Whistler, which was a popular fund-raising event as part of the Bay Day festivities May 5 at the little red school house off Highway 1. Gorgeous weather erased thoughts of last year's rain-marred event as hundreds of young and old alike joined in the fun. The annual celebration also marked the dedication of "Rosa's Yard" named after Rosa Doner, the first director of Bay School. (Photos by Holly McFarland.)

Youth baseball play provides plenty of runs in high-scoring contests

By DOROTHY MEHEEN

REGULAR play at Larson Field started last week with a lot of exciting games, including the Pinto "T-Ball" division games for seven- and eight-year-olds, which are played on Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings.

One of the teams this year is Bank of Carmel, managed by Steve Croswell and coached by Bob Rice. Its team members consist of Bradley David Alexander, Kelly Croswell, Darren Demayo, Steven Garrett, Michael Heeter, Paul Huntington, Peter Jepson, Casey Ann Lee, Brooks Moses, Dustin Nagai, Lupe Ramos, and James Rice.

The first game of the season in the Mustang Division for nine- to 10-year-olds started with Dick Bruhn, managed by Steve Travaille, which lost to Carmel Insurance, managed by John Odello and coached by Mike Christensen, 6-1. The lone run for Dick Bruhn was also the first home run of the season, hit by Frank Melicia. Carmel Insurance's Greg Jackson pitched the win, with Clas Brown coming up with two doubles and Chad Christensen with one for the winning team.

The next day, Rudy Harris, managed by George Covell, fell to County Mounties' managed by Joe Pistulka, 12-5 in a big-hitting game, including a home run each for County Mounties' Pat White and Jeremy Whitaker. Pat also tripled, went 3-4, and struck out seven batters. Sky Feekes was the winning pitcher and also tripled, and Kevin Quinn doubled, all for County Mounties.

On Saturday, Mustang action opened when Orange Julius, managed by Bill Moore and coached by Russ Von Rubin, beat Dick Bruhn 9-7. Grant Heinrich pitched the win for OJ, while Mike Pauly was lead hitter with a triple and a double. Sean O'Rourke doubled for Dick Bruhn, and Brooks Juhring came up with two doubles for OJ. In the field, Frank Melicia (DB) hit a line drive to pitcher Grant Heinrich, instituting a double play at first. Frank, pitching for Dick Bruhn, struck out six batters.

Later that day, County Mounties defeated Carmel Realtors, managed by Dick McGonigal and coached by Aaron Eppler, 10-5, with Pat White the winning pitcher. Sky Feekes was the leading hitter for County Mounties, and included a triple in his hits. Sky and Pat combined excellent pitching for CM with 14 strikeouts. Chris Pistulka of the Mounties scored three runs in the win.

THIS WEEK'S play on the Bronco Field started when Nielsen Market, managed by Ron Gill and coached by Alan Smith, defeated Sierra Motor Coach, managed by Jon Shoemaker and coacked by Sam Womer, 14-10. Scott Smith, pitcher of the record, came up with two doubles and went 3-4, with Scott Gill, Jeff Norlock, Devin Meheen and Chris Cowles all making two hits each for NM.

Scott Gill and Jeff Norlock also both had doubles to their credit. George Zarate went 3-4 and center fielder, Bryan Dirickson, made a great play in the first inning, both for Sierra Motor Coach.

On Tuesday, Carmel Valley Disposal, managed by Joe DeRuosi, lost to LaPlaya, managed by Mike Prieto, 11-6, with Kevin Winton pitching the win. Jim Witherell was leading hitter for La Playa with a triple, a double, and went 3-4 while LP's Rick Prieto went 2-4, also with a double. Scott Allen came up with a nice double for Carmel Valley Disposal. La Playa performed two innings which ended in double plays, both started by Rick Prieto to catcher Jim Witherell.

Pine Inn, managed by Jim and Lou Langley and coached by Gene Takigawa, lost to Derek Rayne, managed by Jerry Rotharmel and coached by Michael LaPage, in a very close game until the seventh inning on Wednesday, ending 16-12. Danny Kleinbardt was winning pitcher and also doubled, as did Jason Vogelpohl. Pine Inn's Chris Angelo and Aaron Anderson also doubled. A great double play was made from Russell Peavey to Bryan Langley for Pine Inn.

On Thursday, Nielsen Bros. Market fell to La Playa 7-4. Rick Prieto pitched the win. La Playa's Kaleb Stevens hit a double and batted in two RBIs. Aram Stoney had two hits, and Kevin Winton two RBIs. Michael Parrish and Scott Gill both doubled for Nielsen Bros. Market.

The first Bronco game on Saturday saw Nielsen Bros. Market again defeated, this time by Pine Inn, 7-5. Russell Peavey did a beautiful job of pitching the win, and Phil Fuerstner made a double play, which helped to make the first three innings scoreless for Nielsen Bros. Market. Russell also doubled for Pine Inn and went 2-3, while Scott Smith made two doubles for Nielsen Bros. Market.

Directly following, Derek Rayne lost to Carmel Valley Disposal 7-4. Brett Abernathy was pitcher of record and Carlos Moore doubled for CVD, while Hans Hess doubled for Derek Rayne.

Colt league registration May 12

Registration and tryouts for the Carmel Youth Baseball Colt Division will be at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 12 on the Carmel High School baseball diamond.

Interested residents can reserve a space for their local homecrafts by watching the newspapers for announcements when registrations are taken, usually in late September and early October.

CHRISTMAS IN CARMEL — 624-3996
This colorful event has become an annual tradition when all Carmelites gather in the Sunset Theater for an afternoon of music. You can join the choir singing on the stage or join them in song from your seat in the theater. A prize-winning Christmas song is also featured. After the program, Santa Claus joins us on the terrace for hot apple cider and sweets. The entire community participates in this warm exchange of community fellowship.

WATSONVILLE BAND — 373-1042
Each year the Watsonville Band offers a free concert in the Sunset Theater to the community. An evening of rousing and familiar music is performed to an audience at no admission charge.

FOREST THEATER SUNDAY AFTERNOON SERIES — 624-3996
Each Sunday afternoon during the months of July and August at 2 p.m. a program by well-known performers is offered free of charge to the community by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTING CEREMONY — 624-2781
The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea invites everyone to begin the holiday season with the traditional Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony. This happy event takes place at the corner of Junipero and Ocean avenues on an announced date each year — usually following the Christmas in Carmel celebration. The ceremonies are highlighted with Christmas music, caroling, and the lighting of the new tree. Hot apple cider and refreshments will be served along with a visit from Santa Claus.

BROWN BAG CINEMA — 624-3996
The Community and Cultural Center offers the community films free of charge. These films are offered the third Thursday of each month at 1 p.m. in Carpenter Hall preceded by a Brown Bag lunch in the Chapman Room. It is also a time to renew old friendships and to make new ones; to share a meal instead of eating alone. Come at noon and enjoy both fellowship and an entertaining experience.

THE SUNSET CENTER FILM FESTIVAL — 624-3996
Each year the second Tuesday evening of the month is dedicated to a theme film festival. This year, Sunset presents the British Comedy Film Festival. We are pleased that we can continue to offer the community quality family films at low prices not changed since the festival was first presented in 1974. Call the Sunset Center office at 624-3996 for more information.

TOT PROGRAMS

Opportunities That Just Keep Knocking

Charles Feek has come out of retirement to share with you some of his experience after a lifetime in the hospitality industry. We hope you enjoy his wisdom and sensitivities to the world around us.

We have all heard it said time and time again, that " . . . opportunity knocks but once". Well, it simply is not true. I believe that opportunity is knocking all the time. But the constant rush that surrounds us often keeps us from seeing opportunities, and even worse, — from responding. Life doesn't have to be that way, you know.

For years, many people have viewed the Covey Restaurant as a place reserved only for special occasions, (special opportunities, if you will), and have denied themselves tremendous joy in doing so.

Not only has the joy of fine dining been denied, but so has the opportunity to celebrate life. Why wait for birthdays, anniversaries and holidays to enjoy the Covey. After all, every day offers an opportunity to celebrate life — even if it's just to let someone know that you love them. What could be more important?

So don't wait forever to enjoy the Covey Restaurant. Seize those little opportunities as they present themselves, and celebrate life in the process. You'll find the Covey Restaurant at Quail Lodge the perfect place to do both!

THE COVEY
RESTAURANT
AT QUAIL LODGE

Only 3½ miles from Hwy. One on Carmel Valley Road. Cocktails from 5 p.m. Dinner from 6:30 every evening. Jackets required.

TERRACE above the portico of St. Peter's, the Vatican, is one of the settings of Rome and the Romans. The Explorama feature comes to Carmel May 17 and 18.

Rome and Romans featured in Explorama film May 17-18

'IT'S THE Romans, past and present, who have made their city one of the great cities of the world," according to travel documentary film producer, Clay Francisco.

Francisco will appear in person to narrate his new feature-length travel documentary film, Rome and the Romans, as the closing event of the current Explorama season.

In Carmel, the film will be screened for three performances only at 2 p.m. Friday, May 18 and at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, May 17 and 18 at the Sunset Theater.

Clay Francisco, formerly with Time and Life magazines, has produced more than 15 feature-length travel documentary films. He received a special citation from the American Film Festival in New York for his work.

Francisco spent six months on location in Rome during the production of this new film.

Reserved seat tickets are available at The Mail Box on Eighth Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets, Carmel, all BASS outlets or phone charges can be made by calling (415) 771-4733.

Public Notice

CITY COUNCIL
CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 84-10
AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING FIRES ON THE PUBLIC BEACH AND SLOPES LEADING THERETO AFTER THE HOURS OF 10:00 P.M. ON JULY 4, 1984.

WHEREAS, the Carmel Beach is a treasured resource; and

WHEREAS, the Beach has been severely damaged by winter storms and is in need of repair and restoration; and

WHEREAS, extensive damage has been done each 4th of July to vegetation, trees and other City property; and

WHEREAS, extensive illegal fireworks, explosive and smoke devices have been set off each 4th of July which have been potentially dangerous and life threatening; and

WHEREAS, the size of the crowd makes it extremely difficult to enforce City Ordinances which allow only "safe and sane" fireworks and regulate fires on the Beach; and

WHEREAS, in spite of regulations adopted by the City Council limiting fire size and regulating parking for the 4th of July 1982, prohibited fires were built, unruly crowds gathered and confrontation with law enforcement officials occurred; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the City Council to change the nature of the 4th of July celebration at Carmel Beach by the elimination of destructive, illegal and anti-social behavior and restore the Beach to comfortable family and picnic use on the 4th of July;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. No person, firm, corporation or other entity shall build, light, maintain, cause or permit to be built, lighted or maintained, any open or outdoor fire on any Public Beach or slopes leading thereto within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea after the hour of 10:00 p.m. on July 4, 1984. This prohibition is applicable to all Beach and slope area lying West of San Antonio Avenue as it extends to the North from Ocean Avenue, West of Ocean Avenue and West of Scenic Drive. This prohibition against fires shall extend from 10:00 p.m. on the day it commences until 7:00 a.m. the following day.

Section 2. Any prior Ordinances or sections of the Municipal Code, including Section 697.02.1 and Section 730.0 k 1 in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby suspended during the time of the ban on fires.

Section 3. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finds that the recitals of fact in the WHEREAS portion of this Ordinance are true and that the prohibition against fires is necessary in order to cause people to begin to wind down their 4th of July celebrations on the Beach so as to avoid the numerous problems that have arisen on the Beach in the past. The City Council further finds that such prohibition is necessary as part of the overall plan to restore the lawful use of the Beach on the 4th of July and to enable all persons to use the Beach without fear and aggravation by nuisances.

Section 4. Any person, firm, corporation or other entity which violates the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an infraction and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding FIFTY DOLLARS ($50.00).

Section 5. The City Administrator is directed to publicize the prohibition established by this Ordinance well in advance of the 4th of July and to post signs informing the public of the existence of this Ordinance at appropriate points of access to the areas to which the prohibition applies.

Section 6. This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, this 1st day of May, 1984, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Maradei, Stephenson, Wright, Townsend.
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None.
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Arnold.

Wonderful Early Carmel House

Here since before there was a town of Carmel, a classic American home with 5 to 7 bedrooms, 2100 sq. ft., 1½ baths + W.C. Spacious high ceilings, filled with light, everyone loves it! Large double lot with giant live oak. Room enough for an approved studio/guest house. A great place for children!

It could list for $325,000 but is priced to sell fast at $265,000. A fantastic buy, and an opportunity to own one of the most precious spots on earth. See it any time, N.E. corner of 4th and Guadalupe. 624-0335.

BIG SUR Ocean and Mountain Outlooks

This home, unique in setting and character, looks westwards to the Pacific Ocean and east to the Big Sur River Gorge emerging from the Santa Lucia Mountains. The house, on ten acres, is set among redwood trees on a shoulder of Pfeiffer Ridge about two miles from the Scenic Highway on a year-round country road.

The 1200 sq. ft. residence includes, on the ground floor, living area with fireplace, dining area, kitchen and bathroom. Huge sliding doors open whole walls to the outdoor deck, views and clean fresh air. The east wall opens to the garden/deck/hot tub area.

The upstairs bedroom area, with its woodburning stove, opens to the living space below. A full bath completes the second floor.

The circular deck, enclosing the hot tub off the southeast corner of the residence, is delightful. From this outlook can be seen the moon rising over the Santa Lucia Mountains, and the sun sinking into the Pacific. Price is $295,000. CITY COUNCIL
CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 84-9
AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE USE OF ALL FIREWORKS INCLUDING "SAFE AND SANE" FIREWORKS WITHIN THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, INCLUDING ON THE PUBLIC BEACH.

WHEREAS, the Carmel Beach is a treasured resource; and

WHEREAS, the Beach has been severely damaged by past winter storms; and

WHEREAS, extensive damage has been done each 4th of July to vegetation, trees and other City property, and

WHEREAS, extensive illegal fireworks, explosive and smoke devices have been set off on the 4th of July which have been potentially dangerous and life threatening; and

WHEREAS, size of the crowd makes it extremely difficult to enforce City ordinances which allow only "safe and sane" fireworks on the Beach; and

WHEREAS, the smoke, noise, danger and debris creates a nuisance making the celebration of the 4th of July unpleasant for many beachgoers and for private property owners; and

WHEREAS, crowd control problems arose on the Beach on the 4th of July, 1982, which led to confrontation between law enforcement officers and the crowd; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the City Council to change the nature of the 4th of July celebration on Carmel Beach by the elimination of destructive, illegal and anti-social behavior and restore the Beach to comfortable family and picnic use on the 4th of July;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. "FIREWORKS" as used in this Ordinance shall mean any substance, combination of substances or device, containing chemical elements and chemical compounds capable of burning or exploding, prepared for the purpose of producing audible, visual, mechanical, thermal, or other effects. "Fireworks" shall include, but are not limited to, blank cartridges, toys, such as toy pistols, toy cannons, toy canes, or toy guns in which explosives are used, firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, rockets, Roman candles, daygo bombs, sparklers, party poppers, chasers, fountains, smoke sparks, serial bombs, fireworks kits, paper caps, and other devices of like construction. "Fireworks" shall not include any auto flares, paper caps containing not in excess of an average of twenty-five hundredths of a grain of explosive contents per cap, or toy pistols, toy canes, toy guns or other devices for use with such caps.

Section 2. No person, firm, corporation or other entity shall, within the incorporated area of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, including the public beach, explode, fire, use, light, ignite, shoot off, or otherwise set off any fireworks.

Section 3. This ordinance is a temporary ban on fireworks. Code sections and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, including any conflict with any part of Section 730.0f of the Municipal Code, are suspended while this Ordinance is in effect. This Ordinance shall remain in effect until the first Wednesday after the first Tuesday in February, 1985.

Section 4. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finds that the recitals of fact in the WHEREAS portion of this Ordinance are true and that total prohibition of fireworks is necessary in order to restore the lawful use of the Beach on the 4th of July and to enable all persons to use the Beach without fear and aggravation by nuisances.

Section 5. Any person, firm, corporation or other entity which violates the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an infraction and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding FIFTY DOLLARS ($50.00).

Section 6. This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 1st day of May 1984, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Maradel, Stephenson, Wright.
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Townsend.
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Arnold.

THIS publicity shot, autographed "To Monte Mart," was presented to the owner of the Salinas store when the Beach Boys played at its first anniversary. Attired in trendy suits, the Beach Boys are, left to right, Dennis Wilson, Dave, Carl and Brian Wilson and Mike Love. Beach Boys' management was unable to identify the Dave shown here.

to doing numbers in a specific sequence with Dennis there."

In a business noted for overnight oblivion and constant personnel turnover, the Beach Boys have retained a basically unchanged lineup for two decades.

"We've had the same sidemen for 10 years. That's a long time for a band to stay together."

In 1962, the Beach Boys performed at the first anniversary of Monte Mart in Salinas. Jardine had dropped out of the band at the time to continue his education.

Other local appearances by the Beach Boys were at the Big Sur Festival in 1967 and the 1971 Monterey Pop Festival.

Jardine estimates he has sung California Girls; Fun, Fun, Fun; Surfin' U.S.A. and others from the Beach Boys roster of golden hits in concert about 2,500 times.

"It's just kind of automatic. I remember years ago the Kingston Trio saying they had performed Tom Dooley about 2,000 times and I couldn't believe it."

Jardine has two sons by an earlier marriage. Matthew, 17, attends Carmel High and Adam, 13, goes to Sabin-McEwen Learning Institute. The boys live with their mother, Lynda, in Carmel.

ACCORDING to Mary Ann Jardine, "Both of them are very musical and interested in art and music. The boys take sax and guitar and piano, and they both have very good voices. The younger has a tremendous voice with nearly perfect pitch."

In addition to his love of the land, his sons are another reason Jardine intends to remain in Big Sur.

"We want to stick around and at least watch them leave school," Mary Ann said. "I don't foresee ever leaving here. Alan loves it too much."

Jardine admitted to being impressed by the "natural disorder" of the slide only recently cleared at Big Sur.

"There were slides on both sides of my place. You had to walk in. They were flying things in by commercial plane. I walked to Hurricane Point and it was quite an experience seeing that natural disorder. I kind of wish it would stay that way."

Mention the name of the former Secretary of the Interior, James Watt, and Jardine's face breaks into a wide grin.

"I think he's a terrific comedian," Jardine said of the man who banned the Beach Boys from playing a July 4th concert in Washington, D.C. last year. The Beach Boys attracted an "unwholesome element," Watt claimed, and selected Wayne Newton in their stead.

"He's the most ballsy, outfront guy I know of. He just says what he thinks and it comes out incredibly, sometimes, ill-timed and maybe indefensible."

"You've got to give him credit for saying what he thinks," Jardine added.

With a Beach Boys album and million-dollar video history in the works this year, the group appears to have triumphed over any tragedy.

"Our long-range plans — a perennial endless summer, you might say," Jardine said. "Our most important goal right now is to have some singles on the air."

Hidden Valley Designers' Showcase May 12-20

'SPRINGTIME at Hidden Valley" is the theme for the annual designers' showcase presented by the Friends of Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

For the first time, the oak-studded campus of Hidden Valley will be the location for this display of innovation in interior design offered by a dozen Monterey Bay designers. Each of the artists will create a full-scale vignette. The vignettes will depict a scene that suggests the mood of an entire room, and will utilize original ideas to portray a unique design statement.

The designers' showcase will be open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 12, through Sunday, May 20. On Friday and Saturday, May 18-19, the showcase will also be open from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. It will be closed Monday and Tuesday.

The vignettes, described as interiors set to music, will be on display in the Hidden Valley Theater, located off Carmel Valley Road near Ford Road in Carmel Valley. Continuous musical performances by the resident artists of the Music Seminars provide additional entertainment. Admission to the charity event is $5 per person.

Local designers who will participate in the showcase are Nellie Currie, Jan Gardner, Charles Gruwell, Gayle Holmes, Gail Lehman, Don and Marsha Maxcy, Charlene Matoza, T. Scott Moore, Dee Robertson, Rita Seger, Lynda Thornton of Gray and Green and Oliver White.

In addition to the show, a boutique will be open at Hidden Valley. A variety of local crafts, collectibles and antiques will be available for sale. An outdoor luncheon buffet will be offered by reservation only each day from noon to 2 p.m. Luncheon price is $7.50.

Advance tickets to "Springtime in Hidden Valley" are available at Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard, Carmel; How to Do Anything Bookstore, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, Pacific Grove; Abinante Music Store, Monterey; Wardwells and Jim Gattis Menswear, Salinas and at Hidden Valley. For more information or reservations, call 659-3115.
